

Griffin House, 3 Griffin Road, Epsom, NH

The large red colonial house that stands on the east side of the corner at the intersection of Griffin Road and Echo Valley Road has been known as the Griffin House for many years. It has been in the Griffin family from 1814 till 1941.

This was the home lot of Deacon George Wallis who received it from his father Samuel, the original proprietor. The property was deeded in 1741 and states that George was already living there, making him one of the earliest residents of the town. George Wallis (Wallace) married Margaret McClary, daughter of Andrew McClary the immigrant who lived next door. George lived at this site and willed the homestead to his son-in-law Capt. Thomas Babb and his wife Elizabeth Wallis. After the death of Thomas, the property was sold to David Griffin - the five daughters of Thomas Babb and Elizabeth McClary having signed clear on the title. The homestead at this time included the original home lot and house plus additional land acquired by Deacon George Wallis.

The present home was built by David Griffin (according to historian John Mark Moses) in 1824 and it was still in the Griffin family in the Epsom census of 1909. Going from David to Nathan and then to John W., a distant cousin. John W. Griffin lived most of his life in Massachusetts, but returned in 1908 just in time to be included in the 1909 census.
