REPORT OF SCHOOLS.

The Superintending School Committee of Epsom, respectfully submit the following report for the year ending March, 1879:

GENERAL STATEMENTS.

I. The Number and Length of Schools. The number of terms of school (exclusive of the terms kept in the Union Districts) kept during the year is nineteen. The whole length of schools for the year, one hundred and forty weeks; the average length of school to each district, fifteen and five-ninths weeks.

II. Different Scholars and Average Attendance. The total number of different scholars attending school during the year, exclusive of those who attended in the Union Districts, is 231, viz: 118 boys, 113 girls. Average attendance, 177.

III. Money Expended.

The amount of money raised by the town for school purposes, is $728.00 ; amount of literary fund, $86.58. An average of $3.19 for each scholar.

IV. Branches Studied.

About the same proportion of scholars as in former years, have attended to reading, spelling, geography, grammar and arithmetic. Five have studied algebra, three book-keeping, and four history. Being convinced that penmanship was too much neglected in our schools, we urged upon the scholars at the commencement of the summer terms the importance of acquiring a fair and legible hand writing, and I am pleased to be able to state that our schools now generally give considerable attention to this branch of common school education.

PARTICULAR REMARKS.

DISTRICT No. 1.

Charles H. Hall, Prudential Committee. Summer term.—Miss Anna B. Currier, teacher. Wages per month, including board, $27.00 ; length of school, 9 weeks; whole number of scholars, 32.

Miss Currier fully sustained her former reputation as a thorough and systematic teacher, by keeping one of the best schools that we ever visited in district No. I.

Winter term.—D. Gilman Chesley, teacher. Wages per month including board, $35.00; length of school, 13 weeks; number of scholars, 39.

Although the school was quite lengthy (lengthened materially, by using money unexpended last year) yet nearly all the scholars were very Constant and punctual in attendance during the entire term, and made good improvement.

Some of the younger scholars by writing their spelling on tablets designed for the purpose, not only improved rapidly in spelling, but also acquired much skill in penmanship. Written examinations were given several classes by both of the teachers in their respective schools. Annie Chesley is reported as having ranked the highest in these examinations in the summer school, and J. Eugene Philbrick, in the winter school.

DISTRICT No. 2.

Charles W. Leighton, Prudential Committee.

Summer term.—Miss Arabella Chesley, teacher. Wages per month, $24.00 ; length of school, 5 weeks ; number of scholars, 38.

Your committee discovered in this teacher a faculty for securing good order and regularity in everything connected with school duties with few words and little effort. The consequence was there was no whispering or playing in school to be noticed, and everything in this large school moved along smoothly and pleasantly, and considering the length of the term, good progress in studies was made.

Winter term.—Mr. Horace Wheeler, teacher. Wages per month, $32.00; length of school, 6 1-2 weeks; number of scholars, 40.

At our first visit we found the school far from satisfactory ; with a teacher anxious and abundantly able to render it a first-class school. Subsequently, there was a decided change for the better in the order and discipline of the school, and the closing examination gave evidence of more than ordinary improvement in the branches studied. The per cent, of average attendance in this school is the highest in town during the winter, it being a fraction over 96 per cent. Such constancy in attendance, is praiseworthy in parents, pupils and teacher. This was Mr. Wheeler's first experience in teaching.

DISTRICT No. 3.

J. Calvin Smith, Prudential Committee.

Summer Term.—Miss Abbie J. Davis, teacher. Wages per month, not including board, $10.00; length of school, 8 weeks; number of scholars, 13.

The pupils were respectful and kind in their deportment, and won the love of their teacher, who was faithful to her trust. Of course, such a school prospered well.

Fall term.—Miss Susie J. Goodhue, teacher. Wages per month, $10.00; length of school, 4 weeks; number of scholars, 14.

Miss Goodhue had taught three terms in this district before this, and this fact of itself is sufficient evidence that she was appreciated as a teacher by the district. The teacher combined energy with thoroughness, and the school under her management advanced well in studies. A class in analysis and parsing deserves special mention.

DISTRICT No. 4.

James B. Tennant, Prudential Committee.

Summer term.—Miss Annie O. Drake, teacher. Wages per month, $24.00; length of school, 8 weeks; number of scholars, 30.

This teacher is experienced and instructs systematically and thoroughly. She handled the little ones with great tact and skill, and they seemed happy and eager to learn. The order of the school was excellent.

Winter term.—Miss Adda Lake, teacher. Wages per month, $30.00; length of school, n weeks; number of scholars, 41.

The teacher was a live teacher. The school was a live school. It was orderly, prompt and cheerful. The teacher knew from experience how to direct her energies, consequently rapid improvement was made. The usual number of visitors present at the close of each term, indicates continued interest on the part of the parents in the school. The scholars did credit to themselves in the rhetorical exercises at the close of each term.

DISTRICT No. 5.

Albion Locke, Prudential Committee.

Miss Luella J. Cilley was the teacher of both the terms. Wages per month, $19.00 ; length of school: summer term, 6 weeks; fall term, 5 weeks; number of scholars: summer, n ; fall, ii.

It is a settled principle with scientific men that the better acquainted a teacher is with his pupil the better qualified he is to impart instruction to him. Hence it is good policy to employ the same teacher two or more terms in succession when the teacher is a good one, as Miss Cilley proved to be. The classes in reading in No. 5 are deserving of special praise, as their success is the result of much study for the attainment of this most worthy and often neglected branch of common school education.

DISTRICT No. 6. UNION.

Jonathan P. Jones, Prudential Committee.

This school is under the supervision of the committee of Pittsfield.

DISTRICT No. 7.

Cyrus O. Brown, Prudential Committee.

Summer term.—Miss Sarah N. Wallace, teacher. Wages per month, $13.00; length of school, 6 weeks: number of scholars, 16.

This teacher's register was well filled, every important item being attended to which was in consonance with the tenor of her school, where it was found she had been faithful. The school appeared finely at the closing examination.

Winter term.—Mr. George O. Wiggin, teacher. Wages per month, $20.00; length of school, 8 weeks; number of scholars, 17.

There are some good scholars here, and some who make good improvement every term, but there was an apparent lack of that interest on the part of a large portion of the scholars in their studies which makes itself manifest in great results. The per cent, of average attendance was the smallest in town during the year. The teacher's supremacy was not sufficiently well asserted. His ready will to do, however, accomplished much.

DISTRICT No. 8.

Henry Lovejoy, Prudential Committee.

Summer term.—Miss Lilla B. Fowler, teacher. Wages per month, not including board, $10.00 ; length of school, 8 weeks ; number of scholars, 7.

This small but interesting school maintained its usual prosperous condition.

Fall and winter terms.—Miss Alice C. Ladd, teacher both terms. Wages per month, fall term, $10.00; winter term, $8.00. Length of school, fall term, 7 1-2 weeks ; winter term, 8 weeks ; number of scholars, 9 each term.

Miss Ladd ranks among our best teachers and the district was fortunate in securing her services. Every branch was taught in a thorough and skillful manner, and the school was in all respects eminently successful. A class in arithmetic, and a class in analysis and parsing were especially proficient. The expenses of the winter term were met mainly by funds belonging to the district which have long remained in the town treasury.

The board of the teachers was contributed by the district, thereby lengthening the school considerably.

DISTRICT No. 9.

Joseph Chapman, Prudential Committee.

Summer term.—Miss Nettie L. Dowst, teacher.

Winter term.—Miss Emma F. Greene, teacher. Wages per month, summer term, $19.00 ; winter term, $20.00 ; length of school, summer term, 7 weeks; winter term, 9 weeks; whole number of scholars, 17 each term ; average attendance, 16 each term. Both teachers were without experience in teaching, but both possess the requisites of first-class teachers, and were unusually successful for beginners. The scholars were taught to reason, to think for themselves, to go through their studies instead of over them, and consequently they made commendable progress in their studies. No class in town achieved more satisfactory results in Colburn's Arithmetic, than the class in No. 9. We need not remind the citizens of the district of the condition of their school house, for they have a personal knowledge of the fact that it has not a single feature worthy of preservation. We hope to see a new one erected in its stead at an early day.

DISTRICT No. 10.

Stephen S. Bartlett, Prudential Committee.

Miss Sadie Carpenter taught both terms. Wages per month, $14.00; length of school: summer term, 6 weeks ; winter term, 5 weeks; number of scholars: summer term, 16; winter term, 15.

The teacher was very much interested in her work—that her duties should be well performed. Mutual good will and kindness appeared to exist between the teacher and scholars, and there was great interest on the part of nearly all the pupils in their work. We received notice of the close of the winter term too late to be present at the close ; but from the appearance of the school at the commencement of the term, and the progress made during the summer term, we shall venture to report good improvement during the year.

DISTRICT No. 11.

George H. Haynes, Prudential Committee.

This school is under the supervision of the committee of Chichester.

From the foregoing remarks it will be seen that our prudential committees have been unusually fortunate in securing the services of competent and faithful teachers. Very generally they have co-operated heartily in promoting the interest of their respective schools. We have never known, in our experience as committee, our schools as a whole to be more successful than during the past year. No school in town can be said to have been an entire failure. In one or two schools the teachers lacked that energy and tact so desirable in teachers, and some scholars did not give so close attention to their studies as they should ; yet on the whole both teachers and scholars have acquitted themselves well.

It is to be regretted that any of our schools should be so short as some of them have been during the year. The average length of the public schools kept in districts Nos. 2, 3, 5, 7 and 10, is less than twelve weeks to each district. When we reflect that in the common school the foundation of the education of the young is laid, upon which the whole superstructure is built, and that in a large part of our country the public schools are from six to nine months in length each year, we must come to the conclusion that in order to put our youth on an equal footing with the youth of other places we must raise more money and have longer schools. We trust that the voters of the town will see that its interests demand considerable more than twelve weeks of schooling annually, and that the investment of a few hundred dollars more in the educational interests of its youth would be money well expended. D. GILMAN CHESLEY,

Superintending School Committee.
