PREFACE

INTEREST in the preparation of the Gove genealogy was aroused to a very limited extent nearly a hundred years ago; but Humphrey Nichols Gove (No. 468) was the first person known to have begun such a compilation. Others later became interested in collecting material of the branches with which they were intimately connected. The first attempt to make a complete genealogy of the family was begun by Ira Gove (No. 533) of Weare, N. H., about the beginning of the Civil War. His arranged manuscript was finally prepared in book form, which numbered some two hundred and fifty pages of foolscap size and shape. Sometime before his death, which occurred in 1891, when he was eighty-six years of age, he placed it, together with his correspondence and notes, in the possession of Hon. William Henry Gove (No. 1967) of Salem, Mass. The latter continued the researches of Ira Gove, and increased the extent of the work until in 1901 he had tripled the collated material by his personal labor and paid assistance, by examination of records and correspondence, in Europe and America. He caused to be examined the vital records of many towns in New England and thousands of directories of cities and towns in various sections of the United States for names, addresses and occupations of Goves, and visited many of the families in remote sections. Subsequently, he began a systematic arrangement of all the material that had been gathered, and had it nearly completed at the time of his decease, in the spring of 1920. Mrs. Gove, his widow, has caused the work to be completed, and by her generosity this volume now appears in the form in which Mr. Gove would have issued it if he had lived a little longer. It has cost Mr. and Mrs. Gove many thousands of dollars, only a small part of which will be refunded through sales. The successful prosecution of a great work which Mr. Gove sought so many years to attain will be Mrs. Gove's reward.

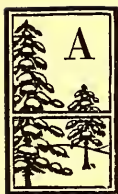

The arrangement of this work is on the Register system, which is so simple that no explanation need be given.

SIDNEY PERLEY.

THE NAME OF GOVE

N attempt to find the original spelling of any surname almost always leads into a maze of speculation, as to the association of various names, and is generally unsatisfactory. Names, which, at a glance, look something alike, will, upon investigation, be found to be unquestionably without relation. In other cases, names, which do not resemble each other in general appearance, will be discovered to have a similar meaning, but, nevertheless, no relationship can be established or hardly presumed. To delve deeply into the subject is to foster imagination and results in improbable conclusions.

Presumably, the surname of GOVE was spelled Goff, and was pronounced as though the vowel o was given its long sound as in clothe. It will be remembered that in the earlier centuries there was no consonant v. The letter f was used like the v of the present time. There was at that time a letter v, but it was a vowel and called u, as shown by the fact that the letter w is generally a consonant, but sometimes a vowel, and, although consisting of two vs, is pronounced double-u. In the course of time, the v-shaped u became rounded at the bottom with parallel perpendicular sides.

The ancient use of the letter f is still extant in a number of instances, as of the singular half and plural halves, and self and selves, and the noun gift and the verb give, also as in strife and strive.

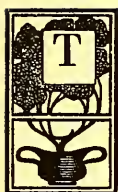

The name of Gough is another form of Goff and Gove, the letters ough being pronounced as f; as, for instance, the word cough is pronounced as though written cof.

The variations of the spelling of this family name resulted from the practice of writing names phonetically. It eventually came to be spelled Gove, as that was more easily pronounced, being given the deeper sound of o, as in loathe.

The names of Govis, Goviz, Guviz and others of similar spellings in Europe hardly seem to be Goves. In some instances, it became written Gove and Goves, but, otherwise, it does not appear to belong to the Gove family.

EUROPEAN GOVES

HE connection of John Gove, the ancestor of the Gove family in America, with the Goves of England has not been learned beyond the fact that John Gove lived in London, from whence he came to America.

In York, England, in 1280, William Godefridi, in Somerton gaol, having been convicted for causing the death of John Goue, was pardoned, as it was shown that he killed him in self-defence.<sup>1</sup>

"Robert Goue, parson of the church of Assherston" appears on the list of protection in 1296-7.<sup>2</sup>

Andrew de la Gove, a monk at St. Valery sur-Mer, 1314, was prior of Takeley, 1325-1340. He had a nephew Nicholas de la Gove and wife Matilda in 1353 and 1357, when they conveyed the manor of Knyghteton, with a mill in Durewenston.

John le Goue was of St. Valery, of the realm of France, in 1629.

Nicholas Gove (also called Cove) of India is mentioned in a letter from Ed. Heynes and others to the East India Company in 1631.<sup>1</sup> He was there in 1632, also. His wife Elizabeth appears in a petition to the company for a part of his wages, Dec. 4, 1633.

A Nicholas Gove wrote from Ghilan in 1634 (with the same company).

Grace Gove, a widow, was buried at Woodbury May 23, 1635.

There was a William Gough of Sutton, gentleman, in 1660.

There were Goughs at Elwell, in the Marches of Wales, in 1513.

Gouiz. The Govis or Gouvis family is of Norman origin, deriving its name from the village of Gouvis,<sup>1</sup> in the Compagne de Caen, in the vicinity of St. Silvain, and near the little Lais, a tributary of the Orne.

Their arms were, Vair a bend unquartered gules.<sup>2</sup> The coat of the Gouis of Dorsetshire, England, bore a lion rampant.<sup>3</sup>

The Govises are found to be more or less interested in every manor, both in Dorset and Wilts, which had belonged to Aiulfas, the Chamberlain at the time of the compilation of Domesday.<sup>4</sup>

The family was very early at Dewlish, in Dorsetshire, at Winterborn Kingston and at Kingsdon, in Somersetshire. Robert de Guviz was the owner of a farm at Develiz and Kingswinterburn, in the parish of Bere Regis, in 1194; and had lost his estates at Devellis before 1210. In 1204, his wife was Alice; and he died before 1229. Their son Robert died before 1241. His children were Isabel, who married — Hall, and William, who was born about 1235. William married Beatrice de Lincoln about 1260, and died about 1264, leaving children: William, Robert and Richard. Richard died before 1303. William served in the army in Wales in 1281-2, forty days, in the company of the uncle of the King, William de Valencia; had land in County Dorset in 1678, and a park at Donetisshe, in that county, in 1287; married Petronilla —; and died in 1299. She held the manor of Dunkirk, and was his widow in 1300, dwelling in the duchess of Normandy; and died in or before 1325. They had two children: Joan, who was born about 1285, in Normandy, married John de Latimer about 1299, and died about 1330; and Alice, born about 1289, married Robert de Musteres, and died about 1309. Robert Gurviz, the second son of William and Beatrice, married Eleanor —; performed military service in the expedition against the Welch in 1277, and probably died before 1302, leaving a son Robert, who was born about 1288. Robert married and probably died about 1346. He had two sons, one of whom was John, who married Agnes —, and died about 1353, without issue. She survived him, and married a second husband, by whom she had two daughters, Isabella, born about 1355, and Agnes, born about 1358. She died April 5, 1370, holding at the time of her decease the manor of Winterborne Ash. The other son of Robert Guviz was Walter, who possibly died in 1370. His son John, born about 1358, married Edith ———, and held the manor of Winterborne Kingston. He conveyed the manor in 1413, and died about 1420. She was his widow in 1430. Walter had a daughter Christian, who married Sir William Newburgh.

Brien de Guviz had lands at Kingesdon, in Somersetshire, in 1194, and in Develiz and Kingswinterburn in 1195; and had the manor of Long Kirchel, in Dorsetshire, in 1255. He had a son Brian, born in 1255, and a son Andrew, who was prior of Taskeley, and died about 1340. Brian de Goviz, jr., was knight for the shire of Dorset in 1324 and in subsequent years. He had lands in Durwynston, Knycheton and Tacton about 1283; and died about 1340. He had six children, Brian, John, Henry (all three having been born before 1276-7), Nicholas, born before 1282, married Matilda ——— and died about 1354, Roger and Sibilla (both born before 1282). The son Brian died about 1293, having had a son who predeceased him, and a daughter Margaret, who married Robert de Boys (or de Bosco), and both died about 1316. The son John had a daughter Alice, who married Hugh de Hinton, one of the lords of Hampreston, about 1315. He died about 1347, and she survived him. The son Henry was given Durwynston and Knychtelon by his father after the decease of his brothers Brian, John, etc. He died about 1316, leaving a son John.

John de Guviz (called son of Thomas) married Alianor ——— before 1347, and died about 1350. She survived him, and subsequently married Thomas de Bridport and William Payne. Mr. Guviz had a son Richard who married Joanna Crukerne about 1347. She died before 1392, and he died about 1400, leaving a daughter Alianor, who was born before 1365, and married John Savage about 1390. Mr. Savage died in 1413, and she married, secondly, Thomas Swanland. Mr. and Mrs. Swanland were living in 1419. Richard de Guviz also had a daughter Joanna, born about 1365, who married Richard Langeford.

John Guviz lived at Woodbury, in Devonshire, about the close of the fifteenth century. Woodbury is three miles east of Topsham and seven miles southeast of Exeter. It contains the hamlets of Ebford, Exton, Nutwell, Gilliford, Grindle, Woodmanton and Higher Hamlet.<sup>1</sup> He married Jane Whiting. His arms were azure a cross lozengy between four eagles, displayed sable. A visitation of Devonshire in 1564 gives arms a cross fusilly sable four eagles displayed. Mr. Guviz died Jan. 18, 1515, having had children, Jane, who married ——— Hilling, Thomas, born about 1508, and George (his second son). The son Thomas lived at Woodbury, and married Alice, daughter of Robert Browne of Newcott, in Devon, gent. They had six children, Joan, who married ——— Halster, Jane, who married William Cary of Ladford, gent., Thomasine, who married Sir Thomas White, kt., Anne, who married John Herknoll, John, eldest son, and Walter, second son, who lived in Woodbury, married Jane Gifford of Clay-hidon (or Clay-haydon), and had a daughter Lucretia. The son John lived in Woodbury, married Agnes, daughter of William Cary of Ladford, in Shebbear, gent., Aug. 19, 1559. They had nine children, all baptized at Woodbury: Gregory, baptized Sept. 6, 1561; Thomas, baptized Jan. 4, 1563, died young; John, baptized Jan. 5, 1565, married Jane, daughter of Thomas Haydon of Ebford, in Woodbury, and widow of Richard Williams, Feb. 11, 1588-9; she died and he married, secondly, Joanna Moore, widow of ——— Blanford of Wyland, Aug. 21, 1619; he died without issue in the summer of 1627; she survived him, and died in the spring of 1635;<sup>1</sup> Jane, baptized Sept. 7, 1566, died in October, 1602, being buried on the thirteenth of that month, at Woodbury; Richard, baptized Dec. 24, 1567; Gertrude, baptized Jan. 21, 1568-9, was living in 1622; Elyos, baptized Sept. 30, 1570, was living in 1622, and had children; Agnes, baptized July 13, 1574, died in 1575, being buried Nov. 2, of that year, at Woodbury; and Joan, baptized July 28, 1575, married and had children, and was living in 1622. The son Gregory lived at Bridge, in Latterton; married, first, Elizabeth, daughter of Doctor Townsend, Dean of Exeter; she died in 1691, being buried at Woodbury July 3 of that year; and he married, second, April 24, 1595, Mary, daughter of John Drew of Trehill, in Kent, esquire. He had five children, Thomas, baptized Aug. 28, 1589, at Woodbury; Hester, baptized Feb. 3, 1591, at Woodbury; John, baptized Dec. 10, 1598, at Walborough, lived in Ireland in 1630; Gilbert, baptized July 10, 1603, at Walborough, died in October, 1603, being buried in Walborough on the twenty-second of that month; and Susan, baptized Feb. 20, 1604-5, at Woodbury. As yet no John Gove has been found in England who might be assumed to be the ancestor of the American family of Goves.

AMERICAN GOVE GENEALOGY

JOHN GOVE<sup>1</sup> was born in England in 1604. His first wife was probably Sarah Mott,<sup>1</sup> whom he married about 1625. She was born in London in 1601. They lived in East Smithfield, Sweden Court, London, where he was a dealer in brass. He probably married, second, Mary, daughter of Edward and Elizabeth (Gifford) Sale of Chesham, County Bucks, England. He paid taxes to the British Crown from midsummer of 1646 to midsummer of 1647; and immediately afterward, with his wife and three children, emigrated to America, settling in Charlestown, in the Colony of Massachusetts Bay.<sup>2</sup> There, for ten pounds, he bought a house from Edward Larkin, a turner, Sept. 29, 1647. He died in Charlestown Feb. 28, 1647-8, and his will was proved April 13, 1648. The following is a copy of the will, lists of debts and inventory of his estate on file in the Suffolk probate office, at Boston, written on one sheet:

<sup>1</sup> So states an old memorandum of Ira Gove, an early genealogist of the family.

Mrs. Gove survived her husband, and married, secondly,
John Mansfield.

The son Edward Gove sued Mr. Mansfield, his stepfather, for debts due to his father's estate; and to satisfy the plaintiff his brother John Gove signed the following agreement:

This 5th day of December 1655 I, John Gove doe promise to pay 50s. to my Brother, Edward Gove for my Father in law mansfield and my mother

Mr. Mansfield was son of Robert Mansfield of Lynn, and was born in 1619. He was a tailor and was often a juror in the county court and a constable of Lynn. He died in Lynn Oct. 16, 1671,<sup>1</sup> apparently without issue. Mrs. Mansfield then went to Hampton and spent the remainder of her days with her son Edward Gove.
She died there, in what is now the town of Seabrook, March 4, 1681, at the age of eighty.

The children of John Gove were born in England, and were as follows:

- 2—I. JOHN,<sup>2</sup> born in 1627. See family numbered "2."
- 3—II. EDWARD,<sup>2</sup> born in 1630. See family numbered "3."
- 4—III. MARY.<sup>2</sup> She was a young child at the time of the death of her father, who, in his will, gave her to Dea. Ralph Mousall of Charlestown and his wife as their own, to which Mrs. Gove consented. He also bequeathed to him a silver porringer and five pounds to bring her up. Mr. Mousall mentions her in his will. Nothing more is known about her.

DEA. JOHN GOVE,<sup>2</sup> born in London, England, in 1627. He was a turner by trade, and lived in Charlestown and Cambridge, Mass., where he was a constable, tithing man and deacon of the church for many years. He married, first, Mary, daughter of William Aspinwall, an early settler of Boston, Oct. 6, 1658. She was born about 1620, and united with the church March 1, 1661, being baptized two days later. She died Nov. 14, 1676. He married, second, Mary Woodward (Woodhead?) March 15, 1677. She was born in 1644; and died Sept. 11, 1700, aged fifty-six. He married, third, widow Elizabeth Waldron, formerly of Boston, Dec. 2, 1700; and she died Nov. 24, 1704. He survived her just one month, dying Dec. 24, 1704.

Deacon Gove left a will, as follows:

In the name of God, Amen, this twentieth and eighth day of August in ye year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and four and in the third year of ye reign of our Sovereign Lady Anne Queen over England, I John Gove of Cambridge in the County of Middlesex within Her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, Turner, being by the mercy of God in perfect memory though weak in body, Do make and ordain this my last will and testaments by me heretofore made and declared by word or writting. First I commit my soul to the everlasting mercies of God the Father in his Son Jesus Christ and through whom he doth seal up his everlasting Love to me by his Holy Spirit. Next I commit my body to the Earth to be buried in such manner as my executors with the advice of the overseers hereafter named shall see fit. Then my will is that all my just Debts and funeral charges shall be paid and satisfied by my executors hereafter named and in convenient time after my Decease.

Item.—I give and bequeath unto my beloved Wife all that was hers before our marriage together to her and her assigns forever. I had of her in cash near five pounds and a Cow also my will is that my son, Jonathan Gove, should winter her a Cow, provide her three cords of wood annually whilst she remains my widow, if she shall need it and my son be capable of providing it for her. Also my will is that my wife and son should dwell together in my dwelling house, if they can agree, but if not then my said son to find her a Room by herself that is convenient, according to the advice of the overseers, my will is that my wife may not want for necessaries.

Item.—I give and bequeath unto my son and daughter Henry and Mary Prentice my swamp meadow lots, being two acres more or less, lying by the fish pond in the west field between the meadow land of Nicholas Fessenden and Solomon Prentice and to be at the disposal of the said Mary Prentice forever.

Item.—I give and bequeath unto my daughter Sarah Gove, her heirs and assigns, a Cow and twenty acres of land at the farm with all my moveables (except one bed to Jonathan which he now lies upon) with what my wife can well spare: my will is that the overseers so divide as that as little wrong may be done to my said wife, son and daughter, as may be, and if my overseers shall see that forty pounds may wrong my said son Jonathan, then less if more so be it: And which moveables, my said son Jonathan, I direct he to have before any other and to have the improvement of them for one year next after my decease.

And I do farther confirm and ratify those Deeds of Gifts which I have made unto my son Nathaniel Gove and my said son Jonathan Gove, and I do nominate and appoint my son Jonathan Gove to be the sole Executor of this my Will and to administer according to the Deeds of Gifts I have made him, and he to give unto all my Grandchildren, his sister's children that are at present alive, when he can spare it or when they come of age five shillings each, or one sheep apiece. And I do desire my trusty and well beloved friends Nathaniel Hancock, Gentleman, David Demming, Gentleman, and Samuel Aspinwall, so far as they can agree in their Reason to see this my last will and testament performed. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year first above written.

EDWARD GOVE<sup>2</sup>, born in London, England, in 1630. He lived in Salisbury, and was a bachelor April 16, 1657, when he bought a right of commonage in Salisbury of Josiah Cobham of Salisbury, planter.<sup>1</sup> He married Hannah, daughter of William Partridge of Salisbury in 1660. With William Allin, house carpenter, Edward Gove, then of Salisbury, planter, for forty pounds, bought of Mr. William Worcester of Salisbury and wife Rebecca one hundred and twenty acres of upland at Batt's hill, in Salisbury, May 1, 1662<sup>1</sup>; and Mr. Gove, then of Salisbury, husbandman, conveyed his half interest in the same to Samuel Fellows of Salisbury, weaver, March 28, 1663.<sup>2</sup> Mr. Gove, still of Salisbury, husbandman, conveyed to John Colby of Salisbury, planter, twenty acres of upland, on the west side of Pawwau river in Salisbury (now in Amesbury), July 7, 1662.<sup>3</sup> Still of Salisbury, husbandman, for eleven pounds, Mr. Gove bought of Samuel Colby of Salisbury, planter, twenty-four acres of upland in Salisbury Nov. 16, 1663.<sup>3</sup> Still of Salisbury, husbandman, for thirty pounds, Mr. Gove bought of Richard Currier of Salisbury, planter, seventy-two acres of land in a place called Jamaica, on the Merrimack river, in Salisbury (now in Amesbury), Nov. 27, 1662;<sup>4</sup> and, for forty-six pounds, Mr. Gove conveyed it to William Buswell of Salisbury, weaver, June 22, 1666.<sup>5</sup> Mr. Gove was still of Salisbury, March 23, 1663, when, for eighty-five pounds, he bought of Eliakim Wardell of Hampton (in that part of the town which is now Seabrook), thirty acres of land bounded by Salisbury common and land of Nathaniel Wyer and Nathaniel Ware, with the dwelling house; cowhouse, etc.; a share in the cow commons; and eighty acres of upland at the new plantation in Hampton, March 23, 1665.<sup>6</sup> Mr. Gove removed to Hampton (now Seabrook) in the spring of 1665; and resided in this house as long as he lived. After his death in 1691 it remained in the possession of his widow, and upon a division of the homestead, in 1712, it went to his son Ebenezer. The farm has continued to be in the Gove name ever since.

For thirty pounds, Mr. Gove conveyed to Ezekiel Wathen of Salisbury, laborer, forty-eight acres of upland, in Salisbury, on the west side of Pawwau river and on the country highway leading to Haverhill, Nov. 28, 1665;<sup>7</sup> and he conveyed to John Ilsley of Salisbury, barber, eight acres of upland in Hall's farm, in Salisbury, in 1669.<sup>8</sup>

This was a portion of the farm which Mr. Samuel Hall had conveyed to the town of Salisbury about 1660; and was subsequently granted to several parties.

Samuel Hall of Langford, Essexshire, England, yeoman, appointed Mr. Gove, whom he calls his friend, as his general attorney in New England March 18, 1669.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Gove conveyed to Onesiporous Page of Salisbury, weaver, his four-acre division of cow-common marsh in Salisbury July 14, 1670.<sup>2</sup> For sixty pounds he bought of Lt. Philip Challis of Amesbury, yeoman, one-fourth of the old sawmill on Pawwauus river, near the corn mill, in Salisbury, etc., Jan. 17, 1671;<sup>3</sup> and, for sixty-five pounds, conveyed it to William Allin of Salisbury, husbandman, Feb. 13, 1671.<sup>4</sup> In consideration of several lots of land in Hall's farm, in Salisbury, Mr. Gove conveyed to John Ilsley of Salisbury, barber, one-quarter of a ten-acre lot in the great meadow Jan. 16, 1671.<sup>5</sup> He bought of William Worcester of Boston, cordwinder, for thirty pounds, ten shillings and six pence, seventy acres of land in Amesbury, towards Haverhill, Dec. 19, 1672;<sup>6</sup> and, for sixty-five pounds and ten shillings, conveyed it to John Gill of Salisbury May 6, 1675.<sup>7</sup> He, also, conveyed to Benjamin Shaw of Hampton ten acres of salt marsh on the south side of Tayler's river, in Hampton, April 30, 1674;<sup>8</sup> to Joseph Dow of Hampton, weaver, for fourteen pounds sterling, eleven acres and thirty-six square rods of land in Hall's farm, in Salisbury, July 6, 1678;<sup>9</sup> to Thomas Philbrick, sr., of Hampton land in Hall's farm, in Salisbury, which he bought of John Ilsley, Dec. 16, 1678;<sup>10</sup> to Thomas Cram of Hampton, for ten pounds, four acres and one hundred and fifty-seven rods of land in Hall's farm, in Salisbury, Nov. 1, 1679;<sup>11</sup> and to Thomas Chase of Hampton, for three pounds and five shillings, one and one-half acres of meadow in Hall's farm, in Salisbury, Feb. 15, 1680.<sup>12</sup>

Mr. Gove was a large land holder; and he appeared in court several times in maintenance of his rights as to lands. He was a strenuous man, and frank even to bluntness. When he believed he was wronged he quickly sought to avenge himself, as far as possible, by his own individual efforts. He did not refrain from forceful language and personal assault and was before the quarterly court several times for such offenses. In 1673, he was fined for abusing Nathaniel Weare of Hampton and for calling him a thief.

He was made a freeman Dec. 4, 1678, and represented New Hampshire in the first assembly in 1680. His impetuosity and strenuous nature caused him to become the leader in the opposition to Governor Cranfield.

All the territory north of the river Merrimack was included in the original grant of Aug. 10, 1622, by the Plymouth Council in England, established by Royal charter "for the planting, ruling, ordering, and governing of New-England, in America," to Capt. John Mason, a merchant of London, and Sir Ferdinando Gorges. It was called Laconia. The grant described the territory as the Province of Maine and as including all that part of the mainland in New England, upon the coast, between the rivers Merrimack and Sagadahock and to the furthest head of lands of said rivers and so into the lands westward for three score miles.

The next year, some fishermen, exiles from the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, built their cabins along the southerly shore of the Piscataqua river.

Rev. John Wheelwright and four other men purchased the same territory of some Indian chiefs May 17, 1629; but the English authorities disregarded the transaction; and Nov. 7, in the same year, Captain Mason obtained from the Plymouth Council a new patent of the territory between the Merrimack and Piscataqua rivers and from the ocean three score miles inland, naming it New Hampshire.

In 1630, a fishing station was established at the Piscataqua river, in what is now Dover.<sup>1</sup> Portsmouth was settled at the same time, and Exeter soon afterward.

The grant to the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, in 1628, ran from three miles south of Charles river to three miles north of Merrimack river. It was contended by the Bay Colony that its grant should be interpreted as extending northerly three miles north of its most northern point, which is Lake Winnepesaukee. This construction would make it include all of the grant of 1629 to Captain Mason. The Bay Colony sought to support this claim by colonization, settlements being made at Hampton and Salisbury in 1638, and at Haverhill two years later. Meeting houses were built, and town governments established.

For several years, Dover, Exeter and Portsmouth had distinct and independent governments. It was deemed advisable to place these towns under the protection of the Bay Colony, and April 14, 1641, by agreement, Dover and Portsmouth were annexed to Massachusetts, which was to have, by the terms of the contract, "jurisdiction of government of the said people, dwelling or abiding within the limits of both the said patents." Exeter was admitted as a party to this agreement in September, 1642.

April 22, 1635, Capt. John Mason obtained another grant, including all that part of the mainland beginning from the middle of the Naumkeek river and from thence eastward along the coast to Cape Ann and around the cape to Piscataqua harbor and so up within the river Newawannacke and to the furthest head of said river and northwestward sixty miles from the entrance to Piscataqua harbor and also from Naumkeek river sixty miles westward, including the southern half of the Isles of Shoals, all to be called New Hampshire.

Captain Mason sent over some cattle, and eight Danes to build mills for sawing boards and grinding corn. He built commodious storehouses and filled them with goods which would be necessary and useful for the new settlement, a large quantity of guns, pistols, swords, cutlasses, ammunition, and two cannon intended for a fort in Portsmouth harbor. After the death of Mason, this property melted away,—the buildings were burned and all the property was lost to the heirs. The loss of this property seemed to presage the loss of his claim to the land.

Capt. John Mason died near the close of the year 1635, and the first heir mentioned in his will having died in infancy his grandson Robert Tufton succeeded to the inheritance and adopted the name of Robert Tufton Mason.

In 1652, Joseph Mason, an attorney for the family, came from England to look after their interests, and commenced an action against Richard Leader. The case was brought before the general court, a survey was ordered and Leader's land was admitted to be within the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts Bay Colony and not within the bounds of Mason's claim. After making some unsuccessful efforts to establish a claim or compromise with the settlers, Mason returned to England.

More than twenty years afterward, in 1675, the king's attorney decided that Robert Tufton Mason had a legal right to the Province of New Hampshire.

Sept. 18, 1679, by a royal decree, the Colony of Massachusetts Bay was restrained from exercising jurisdiction over the territory lying three miles northerly of the Merrimack river and northeasterly to the Province of Maine; and New Hampshire was made a royal province. The commission of the officers was read at Portsmouth Jan. 22, 1679-80.

John Cutts of Portsmouth was the first president, and Richard Waldron, Richard Martyn, William Vaughan, Thomas Daniels, John Gilman, Christopher Hussey, Elias Stileman, Samuel Dalton and Job Clement constituted the first council; the president and council being appointed by the king, and laws were to be enacted by an assembly chosen by the people. Edward Gove was elected a member of this assembly from Hampton. The four towns,—Dover, Exeter, Portsmouth and Hampton sent eleven representatives.

The militia had been organized while under the Massachusetts Colony, and the officers for Hampton were: captain, Samuel Sherburn; lieutenant, Edward Gove; and, ensign, John Moulton.

President Cutts died March 27, 1681, and Richard Waldron succeeded him and held the position of president of the council until the arrival of Governor Cranfield, Oct. 14, 1682.

As soon as the territory came under the control of the king, Mr. Mason proceeded to develop plans to get possession of his American domain. The king gave to him the following authority:

Whereas the said Robert Tufton Mason hath humbly signified to us that he is preparing to transport himself for the taking care of his affairs in the Province of New Hampshire and for the giving of secure and legal confirmation for the estate of such persons as are now in possession, but without any right or legal title to the same, and he being a person whom we have esteemed useful to our service, as he is chiefly concerned in the welfare of that our province, we have further thought fit to constitute and appoint him to be one of our council therein, and we do hereby order and require you our President, and Council, that immediately after his arrival you do admit him to your council of the Province of New Hampshire, he taking the oath mentioned in our said Commission, dated Dec. 30, 1680.

SUNDERLAND.

The principal object of Mason's visit at this time was to secure legal possession of the estate to which he believed that he had the legal title. He endeavored to obtain rents from the settlers, but they claimed that he had no rights and refused to pay rents or take title under him. He hoped, also, that the inhabitants of the province would be induced to take leases under him of the houses and lands, according to the terms required of the king; but he found the undertaking more difficult than he had anticipated. He could not convince the people of the justice of his claims. Some held possession by authority of the Massachusetts General Court, some held deeds from the Indians, others supposed that settlement gave them a title, many claimed rights by peaceable possession for half a century and all believed that the lands they had subdued from the wilds of nature, which they had defended against a savage foe at great expense of men and money, and whose toils and hardships had made it "blossom as the rose" could not be rightfully wrested from them. Few knew of the claim of Mason, and they thought it unjust and cruel that their liberties should be abridged and their property demandable to satisfy a claim that was at best disputable and in their opinion groundless. Had the settlers by any fraudulent means impeded the designs of the original grantee or embarrassed his interests he might have had a demand for damages, but the failure of that adventure was to be sought for in its own impracticability or the negligent inability or inexperience of those into whose hands the management of it came after Captain Mason's death and during the minority of his immediate successors.

Under the influence of disappointment, Mason appears sometimes to have lost self-control and to have forgotten his engagements with the king. Finding himself unable to persuade the people, he undertook to intimidate them to compliance with his demands. In some cases he forbade persons cutting timber or fuel, and even threatened to sell their estates, claiming the entire province as his own and assuming the title of Lord Proprietor. Apparently he had a dream of establishing a government similar to that in feudal days,

By this course he greatly irritated the people and united them more firmly in their opposition to his claims. A few persons, indeed, consented to take leases under him, and a much larger number would probably have done so by conciliatory methods, even though a large majority would have contended for what they regarded as their just rights. Each of the towns in its corporate capacity and many individuals applied to the president of the council (John Cutts, esquire, of Portsmouth) and the council (under the act) for protection.

At a town meeting held in Hampton (a town which contained about one-fourth of the proprietors of the province) March 21, 1681, the subject was discussed, and Serg. Joseph Dow and Edward Gove were appointed in behalf of the town to prepare a statement of the case and to assert the rights of the inhabitants to their lands and to present the same to the council. The council soon afterward published an order prohibitory of Mason's proceedings. Irritated by this order, Mason refused to sit with the council; and, March 27, 1681, disappointed and chagrined, he left the province, having been there about three months, and sailed for England.

The government which he had procured to be created was not likely to be administered in a manner favorable to his views and he made it his business, on his return to England, to solicit a change; and through his influence with the king, Edward Cranfield was appointed lieutenant-governor and commander-in-chief of the Province in New Hampshire May 9, 1682. Mason agreed to give the new governor one hundred and fifty pounds annually and mortgaged to him the lands of the province as security. The consideration promised to the king was twenty per cent of the rents collected.<sup>1</sup>

Cranfield was unprincipled and greedy of gain, and perfectly willing to become Mason's tool for a valuable consideration. He arrived at Portsmouth Oct. 4, 1682, armed with his commission as governor. This instrument authorized him "to call, adjourn, prorogue and dissolve general courts; to have a negative voice in all acts of government; to suspend any of the council when he should see just cause; to appoint a deputy-governor, judges, justices and other officers, by his sole authority; and to execute the powers of vice-admiral." Mason and seven others of the former council were reappointed, while two (patriots) were dropped. Before a week had passed, two more of the local members of the council were suspended.

An assembly was called, which met Nov. 14, 1682;<sup>1</sup> one of the members from Hampton being Edward Gove.

Upon Cranfield's restoration of the two suspended members of the council, the assembly, hoping to detach the governor from Mason's cause, voted him two hundred and fifty pounds. The governor readily accepted it, and Dec. 1 ordered an adjournment. The assembly met again the second week in January, 1683. At this session, some laws were passed and others recommended by the governor which caused much excited debate. The assembly was disinclined to enact laws which it knew would be obnoxious to the people and could not be prevailed upon to sacrifice principle. Owing to the utter lack of harmony between it and the governor, he dissolved the assembly after a session of less than two weeks. This act of Cranfield's, although allowed by his commission, was regarded, not only by the deputies but by the people generally, as an arbitrary act and an unwarrantable abuse of power. The people of the province were indignant at Cranfield's conduct, but, nevertheless, although ever jealous of their liberties, in general demeaned themselves as good citizens. A few, only, under the leadership of Edward Gove, in the exuberance of his patriotism, "determined to revolutionize the government or at least to effect a reform."

By proclamation of the governor, the inhabitants were ordered to take leases of Mason within one month. Few, if any, complied, but proposed that the matter should be referred to the governor that he might lay the cases before the king in accordance with the provisions of the commission of the governor. This he absolutely refused to do. Instead, suits were brought against the settlers, the first defendant being Major Waldron, who was the largest land-owner in the province. He allowed himself to be defaulted as both the judges and jurors were selected by the order of the governor and were known to have espoused the cause of Mason. Whereupon Waldron was arrested and placed in prison for using seditious language, spoken aloud in the open court, viz., that this was a leading case, that if he failed in his defense, all must become tenants of Mason, and that none could serve as jurors as all were equally interested. Numerous other cases followed and were disposed of daily. Jurors were kept from month to month, especially to try these cases. The governor clearly and thoroughly identified himself with the claimant and the council was completely under his influence. He made no attempt to conceal his interest and position.

This order of things continued until the censure of the governor by the King's Council.

Disaffection was general, but how far the conspiracy extended is uncertain. The rising was not unexpected, but it was earlier than was anticipated. Had it been well matured it would have been more successful. The simple fact that the governor became so much alarmed at the action of a dozen men in a riot or rebellion indicates that he was aware of his exceeding unpopularity with the people and greatly feared their revenge.

Gove probably expected a general uprising among the inhabitants, and possibly the sound of the bugle was to be the signal. He had been a resident of Hampton for more than twenty years, and must have been as familiar with the people and their views as any other man. He must have known the wide-spread disaffection and the determination not to yield to the demands of the governor, and his views were well known to them because of his outspoken sentiments. He was thought to be the right man for the assembly, and was elected.

Gove was a person of considerable property, lieutenant of the military company and somewhat popular, and as Randolph, an English devotee of Mason, affirmed, "a leading-man and a great stickler in the late proceedings of the assembly." He resolved, almost singlehanded, to redress his own and others grievances. "He makes it his business," said Randolph, "to stir the people up to rebellion, by giving out that the governor as vice-admiral acted under the commission of his royal highness, the Duke of York, afterwards James II, who was a Papist and would bring Popery among them; that the governor was a pretender and his commission was signed in Scotland. He endeavored, with a great deal of pains to make a party, solicited many of the considerable persons in each town to join with him to secure their liberties. "Gove declared "that his sword was drawn, and that he would not lay it down till he knew who should hold the government." The governor, having received information of his movements, immediately sent messengers to Hampton and Exeter with warrants for the constables, requesting them to arrest Gove, but fearing this show of opposition and that Gove's party might become too strong for the civil power, he forthwith ordered the militia of the whole province to be in readiness.

Gove undoubtedly expected that when his arrest was attempted, there would be resistance and then a general uprising. At first he eluded and repulsed the marshall (who was a local man) and others who attempted to arrest him in Hampton, and hastened to his men at Exeter. He suddenly returned to Hampton Jan. 27, 1683, with twelve men, all being mounted, and nearly all being of Hampton, armed with swords, pistols and guns, a trumpet sounding, and with his sword drawn, riding at their head. They entered the town and Gove, seeing no demonstration in his favor at his appearance, lay down his arms and gave himself up to the authorities of the town, as did the others. They were taken into custody by the militia, except the trumpeter, who escaped. They were imprisoned and heavily ironed. When Governor Cranfield was informed of the arrests, he was mounting his horse to lead a part of the troops in pursuit of Gove and his party.

The governor wrote a letter to the Lords of Trade and Plantations, "dated from New Hampshire, Jan. 23, 1683, in which he reported that Edward Gove, one of the late assembly men from Hampton, has been making it his business to stir up the people in the several towns to rebellion." In a postscript, dated Jan. 27, he writes: "I must add the news that Gove was apprehended on the 23d with some of his accomplices. The rebels will be tried by the laws of England on 1st Feb."<sup>1</sup>

Randolph asserts that many considerable persons to whose homes Gove either went in person or sent, calling upon them to come out and stand up for their liberties, would have joined them had he (Randolph) not discovered Gove's designs or appeared in arms at that time. Having arrested Gove and his associates and placed them in irons, the governor sent a strong party of mounted men to guard them from Hampton to Portsmouth. This was on Saturday. They were taken separately next day, although it was the Sabbath, before the governor and council for examination. Apparently, they had no counsel. Gove was the first one examined. He did not deny what he had lately said and done. He admitted that he did sound the trumpet or caused it to be sounded, as his own; and did draw his sword, because it was his own, and added: The governor is no judge of this court, but a pretender and a traitor to the king and his authority. The examination of the other persons arrested elicited but few facts tending to incriminate them of anything, except being in Gove's company, yet they were all in irons and were committed to the prison at Great Island.

Edward Gove wrote the following letter from the prison to the justices of the Court of Sessions:

From the Great Island in Portsmouth in New Hampshire 29 Jan 1682-3

EDWARD GOVE

Lieutenant-governor Cranfield immediately instituted, by special commission, a court of Oyer and Terminer, and it was held at Portsmouth on Thursday, Feb. 1, 1682-3, five days after the arrests had been made. The judge was Richard Waldron, esquire, and Thomas Daniel and William Vaughan, esquires, assistants, with the other justices of the peace of the province who were then present. The grand jury, which had been drawn and returned, consisted of John Hinks, Robert Elliott, Thomas Marston, John Redman, Samuel Wentworth, William Samborn, Nathaniel Batchelor, Moses Gillman, John Sherborn, William More, Richard Sloper, John Moulton, Edward Gillman, John Roberts, Henry Moulton, Joseph Canne, Mathias Haynes, Job Clements, Joseph Beard, Samuel Haynes and Morice Hobbs. After hearing witnesses, the following indictment was reported:

Edward Gove of Hampton in ye said Province, planter, John Gove of Hampton aforesaid, carpenter, William Hely of Hampton aforesaid, smith, Joseph Wadley of Exeter, in ye said Province, laborer, John Wadley of Exeter aforesaid, laborer, Robert Wadley of Exeter aforesaid, laborer, John Sleeper of Exeter aforesaid, laborer, Thomas Rawlins of Exeter aforesaid, laborer, Mark Baker of Hampton aforesaid, laborer, with others, not having the fear of God before their eyes, but by the instigation of the Devil, having withdrawn their allegiance and obedience to our Sovereign Lord ye King, did at Hampton on ye twenty-sixth day of January last past, traitorously, with force and arms, viz. swords drawn, guns, pistols and other weapons, and with the sound of a trumpet levy war against his Majesty and his government, appearing and rendezvouzing at Hampton aforesaid in a rebellious body and assembly in a hostile manner, raising and making insurrections and with treasonable words at Hampton aforesaid and Portsmouth and other places, moving and inciting the people to sedition and rebellion, declaring for liberty and the like, to the great disturbance of his Majesties peace, to the terror of his people against his crown and dignity and contrary to ye form of ye Statutes in their case made and provided.

The night before the trial of Edward Gove (January 31st), Maj. Robert Pike brought to Governor Cranfield the following copy of record and the depositions of the Stephensens:

At the County Court held at Hampton ye 4th of October 1659. . . .
Leift. Robert Pike and Mr Thomas Bradbury are appoynted by ye Court to take order for the disposing of Edward Gove, according as necessity shall require, and likewise to look after Ed. Goves Estate that it may not be embeziled, and to pay and receive debts as necessity shall require.

THO: BRADBURY, rec.<sup>1</sup>

Salisbury in ye Massathusetts Collony In New England Anno 1682
Sergiant John Steephens, aged about 70 years, declareth and is ready to sweare

That Edward Gove now of Hampton in the Province of New Hampshire was some years since in a Strange Distemper Seemingly Lunatick, and did attempt to kill the wife of George Martin, Saying that shee bewitched him and did to that end charged his pistolls and endeavored it of which condition of his the Court at Hampton being enformed did send for him & understanding his condition, ordered that he should be committed into safe custody to prevent his doing hurt to himselfe or others. Ipswich prison was the place intended, but the s<sup>d</sup> Steephens, out of respects to Gove, undertooke to looke to him, with this condition that, if he could not rule him, he should be assisted to carry him to the aforesaid Prison.

The s<sup>d</sup> Steephens saith that he did abide with him about three weekes, in wh time he did humour him as a child, to keep him quiet and from doing hurt to himselfe or others; sometimes he was seemingly Rationall, and at other times seemingly distracted, that the said Steephens was foured to lock up the dores and lock him in, sometimes he would take a booke and read an houre or two, sometimes he would be more like a mad man, and would not meddle with it, Mr. Dolton the minister of Hampton being there one time, advised that we should keep bookes from him, that he might not read too long to trouble his head, which wee carefully observed

After a while he grew pritty well and went from the s<sup>d</sup> Steephens house, But the said Steephens do further declare that he did looke upon him as a man that was always subject to that distemper. he thinks it was naturall to him for his mother lived & died in that kinde of Distemper.

John Steephens Jun<sup>r</sup> aged about forty three yeares do affirme and is ready to testifie that he doth well Remember that when Edward Gove was at his fathers house, he was in generall, as his father hath above affirmed, and is expressed, though as to some particulars he hath not so well the knowledge of. But doth affirme & declare that the said Gove was distracted & unsafe in his actions and motions and that his father attended him & followed him alway day & night during the time of his aboad at his house, for none of the house besides him could prevail with him, he lay with him at night and he hath heard his father often say that he was often foust to hold him in his armes to keep him from rising & goeing about in the night, and he was certainly a very distracted man by his actings and so accompted.

There be also many more that can testifie to the like; if need be, & some that can sweare they were in company & did many times helpe to bind the said Edward Gove hand & foote (when he was out in his head) for feare he should doe hurt to himselfe or others.

The petit jury for the trial of the accused was duly drawn and returned. It consisted of Henry Dow, Humphrey Wilson, John Brewster, Philip Cromwell, Joseph Smith, John Tuck, Francis Page, John Seiver, Obediah Morse, Richard Waterhouse, Mathew Nelson and James Randle. At the trial, which occurred on Monday, February 5th, Richard Martin of Portsmouth, esquire, testified that about eight o'clock Thursday evening, January 25th, Edward Gove came to his house with Jonathan Thing and said that he "was upon a design, and said 'we have swords by our sides as well as others, and would see things mended before we will lay them down.' He also said that he was going to Dover, and we would hear further from him in three or four days." Jonathan Thing testified similarly. Reuben Hull of Portsmouth, merchant, testified that at Dover on Friday, January 26th, he met

Edward Gove who had his sword and boots on, and said to him, "How now, Gove, where are you bound? What's the matter with you?" "Matter," said Gove, "matter enough. We at Hampton have had a town meeting and we resolved as one man that things shall not be carried on end as it is like to be, and we have all our guns ready to stand upon our guard. I have been at Exeter, and they are resolved to do the same. I have my sword by my side, and brought my carbine also with me which I have left somewhere. Jonathan Thing came with me. I have left him at Portsmouth to treat with John Pickering and some others, and I am going to Major Waldern's to see what he will say to it. He said the Governor had stretched his commission." Hull replied, "Gove, what, are you mad? Do you know what you are going to do?" Gove said, "If you will be of the other side, we shall know you. And if they should take me and put me in gaol, I have them that will bring me out." Henry Green of Hampton, a justice of the peace, testified that on Saturday, the twenty-fifth of January, he saw Edward Gove come into the town with a trumpet and several men with him in two files, some of them having guns. They were taken and secured by a guard; and soon afterward, when he was at Mr. Cotton's house, being informed that the prisoners had broken out, the witness made haste to Cornet Sherborn's. When he reached there, Edward Gove and his company were out, and Gove presented a gun at him. William Marston of Hampton, the constable who had been authorized to arrest Gove and his men, testified that, upon receipt of the warrant, he with others went to Gove's home and made diligent search, but he did not find him. Returning homeward in the nighttime, when he could not plainly see, he heard the trumpet sound and soon met Gove with the trumpeter. They were going toward Gove's house, but being well mounted they got past. Gove said he would not speak with me there, but at his house. When I came to his house the latch string was pulled in, but Gove bid the door to be opened, and stood upon his defence, with his sword or cutlass drawn in his hand towards the justice, saying, "Hands off! I know your business as well as yourself. I will not be taken in my house." Nathaniel Lad, the trumpeter, stepped to him to assist him with his sword or cutlass drawn toward Marston's breast. Upon this move the latter felt constrained to go and secure more assistance. Returning to Gove's house, the constable saw Edward Gove, Nathaniel Lad, John Gove and William Hely quickly mount and ride away. The constable failed to see them again until the next morning, when they came, mounted and armed, toward Mr. Sherborn's house in two files. Edward Gove was in the front, and the trumpeter blew his trumpet. The lieutenant spoke to Edward Gove and his men, and they made no resistance. They dismounted and delivered up their arms, and were arrested by the military forces.

Each of the prisoners then defended himself and his activities. Edward Gove acknowledged that the testimony against him was true. He "railed" at Governor Cranfield, saying he was a traitor and acted under a pretended commission and demeaned himself with "insolence and impudence." John Gove stated that he went along with his father at his command. William Hely confessed that his rising in arms was for liberty. The jury were out six hours, and returned a verdict of guilty for each of the defendants. The judge then respite<sup>d</sup> all the defendants, except Edward Gove, until the king should declare their punishment; but immediately, shedding tears while doing so, passed sentence upon Edward Gove, as follows:

You, Edward Gove, shall be drawn on a hedge to the place of execution, and there you shall be hanged by ye neck, and when yet living be cut down and cast on the ground, and your bowels shall be taken out of your belly, and your privy members cut off and burnt while you are yet alive, your head shall be cut off and your body divided in four parts, and your head and quarters shall be placed where our Sovereign Lord the King pleaseth to appoint. And the Lord have mercy on your soul.

The news of Edward Gove's conviction and sentence was widespread in New England. Rev. Noadiah Russell, then a tutor in Harvard College, wrote in his diary:

11 [No 1682-3] Edw: Goave of Hampton in Mr Masons colony was condemned to dye for taking up armes against ye Govern<sup>t</sup>, after was brought to Boston in order to be sent to England.<sup>1</sup>

The following is a copy of the pardon given to John Gove:

I, Edward Cranfield in pursuance of my Royal commission and instructions do hereby pardon and remit unto John Gove of Hampton in the Said Province Laborer, one of the persons convicted of high treason at the Said Court held by special commission of Oyer and terminer viz the first day of February last past in the year of our Lord 1683 all his crimes and offences of treason and Conspiracy and all penalties and forfeitures for the same Given under my hand and the Seal of the province the _____ day of Feb in the six and thirteenth year of our sovereign lord Charles the Second King of England &c A. D. 1683.

A similar pardon was granted to John Wadley, William Helly and John Sleeper. One of the Wadleys probably died in prison and the other was retained in confinement until the close, or near the close, of the governor's administration. The other prisoners were respite<sup>d</sup> until the king's pleasure should be known, which was that he the governor should pardon such as he deemed objects of mercy, they being all young men and not realizing their transgressions, and all with one or two exceptions were pardoned. One died in prison, one was detained in prison for cause now unknown, and was not liberated until after or near the close of the governor's departure.

Gove's estate was seized and forfeited to the Crown and his large family left in destitute condition.

The deed is done; and he who stands
With dauntless heart to plead the cause
Of Freedom and his Country's good
Is crushed beneath a tyrant's laws;
Transported from his fellow men
A convict o'er the rugged maine
His hand that whilom grasped the pen
Now fettered with the felon's chain.

The following is an abstract of a letter written by Edward Randolph, Collector of his Majesty's Customs in the Province of New Hampshire, to the Lords of Trade and Plantations concerning the rebellion in New Hampshire in 1682-1685:

January 9 The Assembly being adjourned to that day, meet. The Governor recommended to them several good bills that had passed the Council, but instead of their concurrence they either rejected or put them in such disguise as rendered them altogether useless and afterwards would not take notice of any bills which did not arise from themselves they likewise peremptorily insisted to have the nomination of Judges and the appointing of Courts of Judicature power solely invested in the Governor by Commission from his Majesty; and lastly they had prepared bills repugnant to the laws of England upon which the Governor finding them to act without any regard to his Majestys service or benefit of the Province after he had passed some bills not knowing where these would end dissolved the assembly. In a short time after one Edward Gove who served for the Town of Hampton, a leading man and a Great Stickler in the late proceedings of the Assembly made it his business to stir up the people up to Rebellion by giving out that the Governor as Vise Admiral acted by his royal highness Commission who was a Papist and would bring Popery in amongst them: that the Governor was a pretended Governor and his Commission was signed in Scotland. He endeavored with a great deal of Pains to make a Party and solicited many of the considerable persons in each town to Join with him to recover their liberties infringed by his Majestys placing a Governor over them, further adding that his sword was drawn, and he would not lay it down till he knew who should hold the government. This he discoursed at Portsmouth to Mr. Martyn treasurer and soon after to Capt. Hill of Dover which they discovered to the Governor who immediately dispatched away messengers with warrants to the Constables of Hampton and Exeter to apprehend Gove and fearing he might get a party too strong for the civic power (as indeed it proved for justice Weare and a Marshall were repulsed) the Governor although much dissuaded forthwith ordered the militia of the whole Province to be in arms and understanding by the Marshal that Gove could not be apprehended at Hampton by himself and a Constable but was gone to his party at Exeter from whence he suddenly returned with twelve men belonging to the town mounted and armed with Swords Pistols and guns a Trumpet Sounding and Gove with his Sword drawn riding into Hampton at the head of them, was taking horse and with a part of the troops intended to take Gove and his Company: but the Gov-error was prevented by a messenger from Hampton who brought word that they were met withall and taken by the malitia of that Town and secured with a guard; the trumpeter forcing his way escaped after whom a hue and cry was sent to all parts but as yet he is not taken. This rising was unexpectedly to the party made up on the 21 day of January last It is generally believed many Considerable persons at whose houses Gove then either sent or Called to Come out and stand up for their liberties would have joined with him had he not discovered his designs or appeared in arms at this time for upon the 30th day of January being appointed by the Governor a public day of humiliation they designed to cut off the Governor Mr. Mason & some others whom they affected not. The Governor sent a strong party of horse to Guard the prisoners then in irons from Hampton to Portsmouth. They were brought and examined before the Governor and Council where Gove behaved himself very insolently. They were all committed to custody and Capt. Barfoot having the trained band of Great Island then in arms was ordered to take Care of the prisoners and keep a strict watch upon them in regard the prison was out of repair. All this while the Governor was at great charge and expence in Suppressing this Rebellion and keeping up guards to secure the peace of the province. He therefore judged it necessary to bring them to a speedy trial and to that end directed a commission of Oyer and terminer to Richard Waldron Thomas Daniel and William Vaughan Esquires, for their trial to be had on the first day of February next at which time Gove and the other Prisoners were brought to the court then holden at Portsmouth in the said province. The Grand Jury found the bill. The next day they were all arraigned and endihted upon the 13th of the King, for leving war against his Majesty. Gove pleaded to the indightment not Guilty then Mr Martyn Treasurer of the province and Capt Hull both of Portsmouth with two Justices of the peace and a Leut of the foot Company of Hampton who was at the taking of them were all sworn in Court Then Gove owened the matter of fact and to Justify his taking up arms pleaded against the Governors power that he was only a pretended Governor by reason of his Commission as he said was sealed in Scotland, likewise that the Governor had by his proclamation appointed the 30th of January to be annually observed and kept a day of humiliation and Obligated the Ministers to Preach that day The Governor had at his house discoursed to Gove and Showed him Out of the 10 Chap of St Mark, the necessity of Childrens baptism This he urged a great imposing upon the ministry. The other Persons Pleaded not guilty but had little to say in defence for themselves further than they were drawn in by Gove. The Jury after long consideration found Gove Guilty of high Treason upon the indictment and all the rest in arms. upon the Court proceeding to give Judgement and passed the sentence of Condemnation upon Gove but in regard to the other Prisoners were specially found The Governor ordered the Court to respite their judgment till his majestys pleasure should be known therein most of them being young men and altogether unacquainted with the laws of England.<sup>1</sup>

The following is the record of the trial made by Maj. Richard Waldron, the judge who presided thereat:

And if they should take me & put me to Gaol I have them that will bring me out. he asked me to goe to Joseph Beard with him: but I told him I would not, & so did part with him.

That on the 27th of Jan., as I take it ye Constable William Marston, ye Marshall, & Samuel Sherborn came to my house in ye night, & called me up, delivered me a Warrant from the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Governor. I did accordingly. Soon after our return from Edward Goves house, I heard a Trumpett sound, & being exceedingly troubled & desirous to know the cause, while I considered the matter ye Marshall, ye Constable & Samuel Sherborn came again to my house. I told ye Constable he knew what he had to do by ye warrant he had in relation to Gove & I required him to seize ye person that did sound the Trumpett. place for terrour to the whole party, who are still mutinous, if my commission would have warranted itt, besides him 9: other persons were taken, and upon tryall were convict, But their condemnation is respited, having Taken sufficient security for their appearance, there being no Goale in the province fitting to secure them, till his Maj<sup>ty</sup>s pleasure bee knowne therein. And as to Gove I cannot with safety to my selfe, or to the peace of the Province keepe him longer in custody, for besides the greate & dayly charge of Guards upon him, I have cause to feare the Souldiers in time may be remiss or overpowered, and so Gove sett att liberty, Besides by my comission I am directed to send Rebells to England, where if Gove escape the sentence of the law there is an end to his Maj<sup>ty</sup>s business in New England.

I was soon made sensible the Larke Frigott which brought me over to this Province was gon to sea, for as the second meeting of the Assembly in January last they begann to dispute my commission & powre. I recommended to them severall good Bills agreed upon first by their Councill, but instead of offering them they offered Bills repugnant to the laws of England which I rejected & findeing trifling away their time in making of Partys, I was necessitated to dissolve them.

I tooke a Journey to Boston & other places in that Colonie making itt my business to Feele their Temper, I found amongst them a prevayling faction against his Maj<sup>ty</sup>s interest wharever for present turne may bee pretended, & upon good grounds believe that should his Royall Highness survive his Maj<sup>ty</sup> such is their generall aversion encouraged & buoyed up by the nonconformist party in England, that att once they will fall off from their allegiance to the Crowne. its therefore very necessary that the whole Countrey bee brought to a th[o]rough Regulation being alarmed by the Quo Warranto brought against their Charter. Its being equally necessary that his Maj<sup>ty</sup> send a frigott to attend till such regulation bee compleated, by putting the Govern<sup>t</sup> together with the militia Castles and Forts into the hands of Loyall & Honest Gent<sup>l</sup> & the faction made incapable ever after of altering or disturbing that Govern<sup>t</sup>.

I heare it is designed to petition his Maj<sup>ty</sup>s for Gove's life & that to bee managed by the messengers from Boston, if so 't will farther appear to mee that Gove had encouragement from thence, having bene just before the Session of our Assembly att Boston, and I cannot but observe to yo: Honn<sup>s</sup> that Maj<sup>r</sup> Pike one of the magistrates & of the faction in Boston Govern<sup>t</sup> came to mee the night before Gove's tryall with several depositions to certify that Gove was a distracted man, hoping by that means to avoid his prosecution.

The ministers in New England are generally more absolute and independent in their practice than in their principles they intermeddle in all matters of Govern<sup>t</sup>, the people are stirr'd up & composed according as they are influenced by their teachers. I found some of them scrupling to preach upon the 30th January, which by proclamation I have ordered annually to bee observed in this Collony. I did also propose to the ministers as an essential part of their office, the Baptizeing of children & administering the Sacrament which by Gove att his tryall was objected a greate crime & innovation. I am forced to keepe the militia in Armes till Gove bee shipt off, and shall endeavour to keepe his Maj<sup>ty</sup>s peace, But I make it my humble request to his Maj<sup>ty</sup> that Mr. Randolph, who well understands his Maj<sup>ty</sup>s interest & the humour of this people, & had bene usefull to mee since my arrivall, may be despatcht back hither with full instruction & the countenance of a small frigott to attend orders, otherwise I can promise to his Maj<sup>ty</sup> but little Success in the matt<sup>r</sup>s I have in charge.

Mr. Randolph hath been very diligent & made five journey's this winter in the Extremety of weather from Boston above 70 miles distance from hence, & now being ordered to attend at Whitehall takes upon him the trouble & charge of Gove's transport which I could by no means propose to be advanced to him out of the Stock of this Province in regard of the Extry-ordinary expence occasioned to the inhabitants by Gove's insurrection, neither shall advent<sup>re</sup> to call another Assembly till I heare effectually from England. I therefore intreate that the charges of Gove's passage & of others that attend him may be allowed to Mr. Randolph haveing passed my word that the Master shall be paid att his arrivall in England. with the presentm<sup>t</sup> of my most humble Duty I am

After the ship Richard had sailed, Governor Cranfield again wrote to the Secretary of State as follows:

The governor made his administration more and more oppressive by raising the costs of court five hundred per cent, to be paid in money and not in merchandise as before. He became more arbitrary, and he with his council usurped the whole of the legislative power. They levied taxes without the consent of the assembly, and imprisoned some without preferring charges and unjustly fined others. A general feeling of discontent and insecurity prevailed. All felt that their homes, their rights and their religion were assailed, the popular discontent was aggravated, and an unexpressed conspiracy came into existence to overthrow the government.

Governor Cranfield wrote to the Lords of Trade and Plantations: "I send Gove home but have respited his companions and recommended them to mercy. Gove has been tried & convicted of high treason."<sup>1</sup>

Governor Cranfield wrote to the Lords of Trade and Plantations, from Boston, March 27, 1683, stating the reasons for displacing Major Richard Waldern, Mr. Martyn and Capt. Gilman from the Council of New Hampshire: The first against Waldern was "For fining and imprisoning the kings custom officers for doing their duty," etc. The first against Martyn was "For refusing appeals to the king," and, the fourth, "For keeping silence about Gove's plot of which he was well aware, & encouraging Gove." The reason for Gilman's removal was "For suffering Gove & his party to rendezvous in his house, though himself a Captain of a company & justice of the peace."<sup>2</sup>

Steps were immediately taken to secure the release of Edward Gove, alleging that he had temporary periods of unsoundness of mind; and his wife, Mrs. Hannah Gove, sent the following petition to the king, stating similar reasons and praying for her husband's pardon:

Province of New Hampshire May 23 1684

May it please your Lordships. Since Robert Wadleigh is returned from England, having lately had an appeal dismissed by the council board, by taking advantage of Mr. Randolphs absence who was attorney for the parties he hath put the people of this Province into such a ferment and disorder that it is not possible to put his majestys commands in execution or any ways govern them, And though notwithstanding in obedience to your Lordships Commands we have Called an assembly (a copy of the proclamation for the purpose being herein inclosed) we cannot think it prudent or safe to let them sit; they being of the same ill humour or worse as when Gove went into arms, his designs being hatched at the time the Assembly sat. And it looks more like a design, they having those four Constables into the assembly, that the Kings peace may not be preserved (the whole assembly being eleven) this Wadleigh being formerly an Assembly man and hath three sons condemned in Goves Rebellion (and himself now chosen again): the oldest of them I have pardoned, one of them is dead and the other I keep in prison till I receive your Lordships further order, all of the offenders being pardoned. Major Waldrons son is constantly of the Assembly and speaker this being the third that has been called. I wish his Majistys Clemency do not cause some great michief to be done here. They have never given two pence to the support of the Government and that very rate that was made in time of President Cutts and Waldron we have according to his Majestys Royal Commission Continued, but do not think it safe to publish it unless we had strength to Countenance our proceedings

Two letters from Mr Cranfield dated the 20th Febr. & 19th June, read, whereby their Lo<sup>ps</sup> are informed That an Insurrection had been made against the Government in New Hampshire by one Gove who together with nine of his associates had been thereupon convicted of High Treason, and that Sentence accordingly had been passed against Gove whom hee had sent to bee executed in England, it not being safe to keep him there till he could receive his majestys Warrant without which he hath not power by his Commission to punish offenders by death, that he recommends the other nine to their Lo<sup>ps</sup> as fit objects of His majesty's mercy.

Their Lo<sup>ps</sup> will alsoe move that the said Gove who was sent over by Mr. Cranfield to bee executed here may be continued in the Tower.<sup>1</sup>

Apparently nothing was done by Randolph to aid Gove in securing his freedom. The King, however, ordered that his irons be removed and that he be given greater freedom in the enjoyment of fresh air.

Sept. 10, 1684, more than a year later, Gove petitioned the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Foreign Plantations requesting them to procure for him copies of his indictment, trial and conviction, as follows:

To our trusty and well beloved the Recorder of the City of London and all others whom it may concern Edward Gove to be inserted in ye General Pardon

Mr. Gove was given the liberty of the Tower May 9, 1685; and two months later, after being held a prisoner in the Tower for upwards of two years, he petitioned the king to pardon him. Robert Wadleigh, sr., of Exeter visited England, and, at his own direction, laid his case before King Charles II. The following is a copy of this petition:

To the Kings Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble petition of Edward Gove a Prisoner in your Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Tower of London, for Pardon.
Sheweth

That your Petitioner near Three years since was apprehended, tried and condemned for High Treason in New England by prosecution of Mr. Cranfield your Ma<sup>ties</sup> Governor there, and in June, 1683 was committed to the Tower. That want of rest for 18 days before his apprehension deprived your Petitioner of the use of his reason and the Government of his Tongue and Actions and was the cause of your Petitioner's indiscreet Carriage towards the said Mr. Cranfield, as by the annexed case appears. But he is deeply sensible of his crime, and sincerely and heartily sorry for the same.

And since your Petitioner doubts not but that the Compassion and Clemency as well as the Crown of your Royal Ancestors is descended upon you<sup>r</sup> Ma<sup>ty</sup> He humbly begs your Ma<sup>ty</sup> will be graciously pleased to extend your mercy to him in the Grant of your Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Gracious pardon.

And your Petitioner in all the future Course of his life will endeavour to deserve this your Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Royall Favour, by all the Services he can possibly render to your Ma<sup>ty</sup> and shall ever pray your ma<sup>ty</sup>s Long Lives and prosperous Reign etc.<sup>1</sup>

for his good behav<sup>r</sup>.<sup>1</sup>

Accompanying the petition was the following memorandum:

The Case of Edward Gove, Prisoner in the Tower and the manner how he hath been used by Mr. Cranfield His Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Governor of N Hampshire.

Edward Gove was chosen one of the Assembly for Hampton in New Hampshire in New England at the first sitting of the Assembly after Mr Cranfield coming there, at which divers good laws were made.

At the Second Sitting Mr Cranfield required the Assembly to vacate the laws made at the first sitting, refusing to make a return of those laws to the King as his Commission required him, & denyed that part of his Commission, cursing and swearing at ye Assembly & threatening them if they refused to do it.

He demanded all the Antient records & Deeds of the Inhabitants lands, which were granted him by his Ma<sup>ts</sup> Predecessors to their Fathers & by them purchased of the natives & enjoyed about 50 years. And because the said Edward Gove seem'd to oppose those (as he believed) unwarrantable proceedings, he questioned Edw. Gove before the Councill & Assembly and threatened to punish him at Comon Pleas & indite him at White hall, & then dissolved the Assembly

After the dissolution of the Assembly he imposed Custom upon merchant's ships these by his own Authority which was unknown before. Hereupon the said Edw. Gove was much troubled in mind and these and other the violent proceedings of Mr. Cranfield had such an influence upon him that it hindered his ordinary Rest, neither had he above 2 hours Sleep in 18 days, whereby he became almost distracted, & during this time 'tis probable that the s<sup>d</sup> Edw<sup>d</sup> Gove might say that Mr Cranfield was a Traytor for denying & acting contrary to the Kings Commission, he scarce knowing at that time what he either did or said.

Soon after at such time as the s<sup>d</sup> Edw Gove had invited divers neighbors to his house as usually for 20 years & upwards to eat & drink with him, he was apprehended & closely imprisoned by Mr Cranfield's Warrant & in 3 or 4 days without notice & the Jury not being summoned according to the ordinary method of Justice, he was Tryed, convicted & Condemned for High Treason, and all his Lands & Goods Seized & his wife & children turned out of Doors. And Copies of the Records of the Court which should have been free & were of great use to him in his defence, were denied him & Coppies of the Proceedings at his Tryall were afterwards denied to his friends and himself was soon after sent in Chaines into Engl<sup>d</sup> and imprisoned in the Tower, where he might have remained in a miserable condition for want of his Estate & means to live, had it not been for the Gracious & Liberal Allowance of the late & present King.<sup>1</sup>

The petition to the king for pardon was referred to the Committee of Trade and Plantations, who reported as follows:

ABRAHAM CLEMENT &
HANNAH CLEMENT

for my honoured Father Edward Gove in the Tower or else where, I pray deliver with Care.

After the incarceration of Edward Gove in the Tower of London, in the spring of 1683, the rule under Governor Cranfield continued in its arbitrary and cruel manner.

The people were horrified at the bloody sentence of Gove and cried aloud for vengeance. It was already whispered about that public meetings would be held to express the indignation at the baseness of the manner in which the convictions were obtained, and the cruel barbarity of the sentence, which was intended to awe the people into submission. It had a directly contrary effect. The people became more demoralized and ready to do violence when any obnoxious law was attempted to be enforced, and very many times the feeling broke out in open violence.

The officers dispatched to collect taxes in most cases were resisted, yet some executions were levied, but the officers could neither hold possession nor find purchasers. Officers endeavored to levy an execution at Dover on the Sabbath Day, when a tumult ensued, and was ended by a young girl knocking down one of the officials with her Bible.

At other places, the women met the collector of taxes at their doors with scalding water, which proved a perfect barrier to their ingress, and the men with clubs defied their approach, the officers being not infrequently roughly handled.

Cranfield was censured and removed by the King and Council, which was brought about by the influence of Nathaniel Weare, the people's agent at London, who had been sent to acquaint the king with the wicked and arbitrary dealings of the governor and his government. On the receipt of the intelligence of Cranfield's disgrace, a self-constituted committee waited upon him and escorted him to the Salisbury line with a rope around his neck and his legs tied under the belly of the horse which he rode, minus his sword.

The king sent a letter, dated at Whitehall, April 12, 1686, to the President and Council of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, stating that he had pardoned Edward Gove and authorizing and requiring them, instead of Cranfield, to restore to him his estate; whereupon at a meeting of the Council held at Boston July 8, 1686, it was ordered on the twelfth that the justices of the peace or marshall of the Province of New Hampshire give an account of what houses and lands were in Gove's possession at the time of his conviction, that he may have an order to be repossessed of them pursuant to His Majesty's letter.<sup>1</sup> The following is a copy of the record of this meeting of the Council:

At a meeting of the Council held in Boston Nov. 9, 1686, it was ordered that a report be made to the king of Edward Cranfield's estate in New England and what money he had received from purchasers of the estate of Edward Gove. The record of this meeting is as follows:

At Councill held in Boston New England Nov. 9, 1686

[and 7 others]

It is ordered that a Report be made unto his ma<sup>ty</sup> of Edw. Cranfield's Estate in New England, and what money was received by him of such persons as purchased the estate of Edward Gove.<sup>3</sup>

In December, 1686, Sir Edmund Andros became governor of all New England; and this most odious of men ruled it with a rod of iron. The colonists under him were almost without redress; but relief finally came in 1689, by the succession to the throne of England of William and Mary and the seizure and imprisonment of Andros.

Mr. Gove returned to his home, and renewed his life there. He had the respect of the people of the province. As an instance of this is his appointment upon an important matter as an arbitrator in Amesbury, Mass. The matter involved the title to a grist mill on the Powwow river. The claimants were Thomas Barnard, sr., of Amesbury, and Thomas Mudgett of Salisbury. Dec. 1, 1688, they submitted the question to Major Davison and Ens. Nathaniel Clarke, both of Newbury, Maj. Robert Pike of Salisbury and Mr. Edward Gove of Hampton.

He died in Hampton July 29, 1691. He always contended that a slow poison was administered to him while in prison. His wife Hannah survived him, and died after 1712.

The following is a copy of an agreement of his sons John and Ebenezer as to the settlement of the estate of Mr. Gove:

Aug. 20, 1746, Jonathan Connor, gentleman, Benjamin Connor, yeoman, Thomas Lyford, yeoman, and wife Anne, heretofore Anne Connor, sister of said Jonathan and Benjamin, all of Exeter, and Jonathan Rawlings of Stratham, yeoman, and wife Hannah, another sister of Jonathan and Benjamin, for five pounds, conveyed to their brothers Phillip Connor and Samuel Connor, both of Exeter, gentlemen, all their interest in the estate of their grandfather Edward Gove of Hampton, yeoman, deceased.<sup>2</sup>

There was a gun in the possession of the late J. H. Gove of Hampton Falls and a sword cane owned by the late E. S. Gove of Pittsfield, as heirlooms of Edward Gove. The cane is mounted with a silver ferule and Edward Gove's initials are engraved on it, though it has become so much worn that the engraving is barely legible. The cane was presented to him by a friend for his stand against Cranfield.

Ira Gove, the early genealogist of the family, says that Edward Gove brought from London, in 1686, a pear tree, which he set out on his estate in Hampton, where it is now.

JONATHAN GOVE<sup>3</sup>, born in Cambridge, Mass., May 3, 1682. He was a husbandman; and lived in Cambridge until 1729, when he removed to that part of Weston which is now Lincoln. In the spring of 1703, he petitioned the proprietors of the common lands in Cambridge for a piece of land near Jones' hill on which to build a house and barn. It was not granted to him until Dec. 9, 1706. It contained only half an acre, for which he paid thirty shillings. The grant stated that it "shall be from time to time improved by him or any under him for a house lott or homestead to build upon, and for no other use."<sup>1</sup> For fifty shillings, April 25, 1715, the proprietors of the common lands in Cambridge sold to Mr. Gove half an acre of land at the northwesterly end of his barn.<sup>2</sup> He sold his estate on North avenue in Cambridge at the time of his removal to Weston in 1729. He was appointed on various committees by the proprietors of Cambridge.

ENS. JOHN GOVE<sup>3</sup>, born in Salisbury, Mass., Sept. 19, 1661. He lived in that part of Hampton Falls which is now Seabrook.

He was a house-carpenter by trade ; and a worthy man. He was one of the petitioners for a school and meeting-house at Hampton Falls.

He was implicated with his father in his patriotic acts against Governor Cranfield in 1683; and was tried for and convicted of treason; but was pardoned.

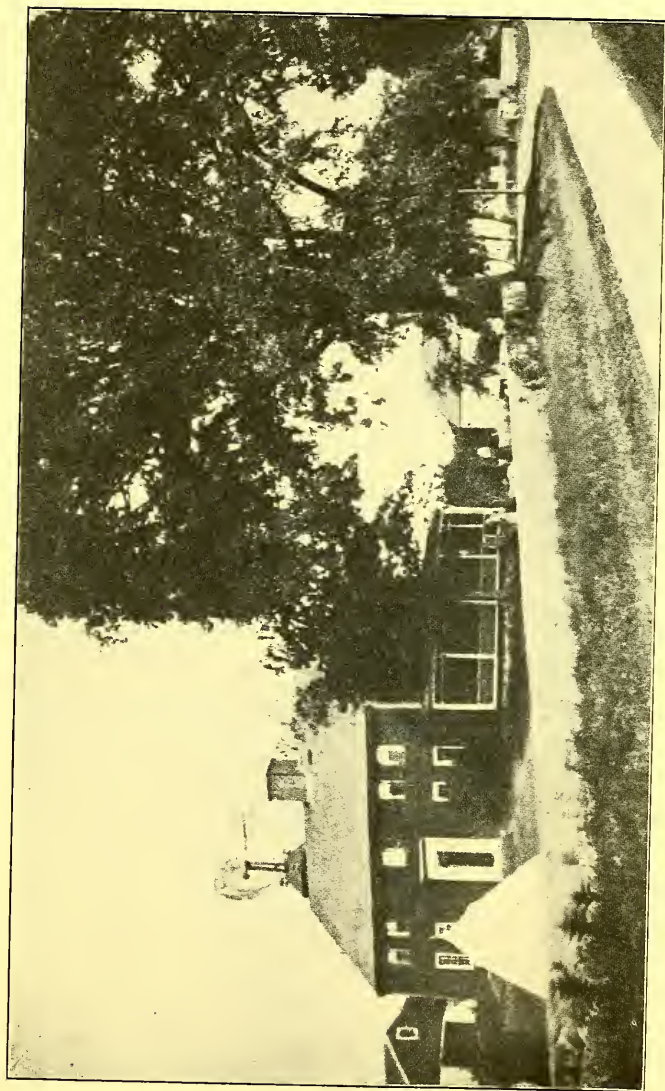

He was a selectman of Hampton in 1694; and at a council held at Portsmouth, Aug. 25, 1699, with others, he took the oaths appointed by law instead of the oaths of allegiance and supremacy and signed the test and association and had their commissions delivered to them by Lieutenant-governor Partridge.<sup>1</sup>

John Gove and fourteen others entered their dissent to a vote passed April 30, 1706, at a town meeting in Hampton, providing for the repair of the meeting-house because they were engaged in building a new meeting-house in the Hampton Falls part of the town.

In 1708, he is entered as a soldier from Hampton; and in 1709 he is called ensign.

Upon the division of his father's farm, in the spring of 1713 he erected a large two-story house upon that part of the land which was assigned to him, and which lay northerly of his father's house. This was his home during the remainder of his life. He was succeeded upon the place by his son Jonathan, and through him and the succeeding generations of Richard, Richard and Jonathan to the latter's daughter Sarah Elma Gove, who lived there and died, unmarried, in 1895. In the course of the settlement of her estate, the place was sold at auction to William H. Gove (No. 1967) of Salem, Mass., in 1897. The purchaser improved the old house and lived here, as his summer home, until the house was burned by an unknown incendiary Oct. 1, 1913, when it was two centuries old. At the same time an unsuccessful attempt was made to burn the barn, which stood near the house. Mr. Gove erected a summer home near the old site; and lived there more or less during each summer until his decease in 1920. He filled the old cellar, and purposed to mark its site by a granite monument, surmounted with a sundial. He prepared the details for the same, and the inscriptions to be cut upon it, but did not live to erect it. Mrs. Gove has sought to complete all his contemplated works, and immediately after his decease, in the autumn of 1920, caused a monument to be wrought and set up, with a bronze sundial on its top and inscriptions upon its four sides. The monument is four feet high and twenty-eight inches square at the base and twenty inches at the top. The inscription on the east side, toward the street, is as follows:

HERE STOOD
THE HOUSE
BUILT IN 1713
BY JOHN GOVE

BURNED IN 1913 BY AN INCENDIARY

On the south side the inscription is a list of the owners of the estate from 1713 to 1920, with the dates of each one's period of ownership, as follows:

JOHN GOVE
(SON OF EDWARD)
1713-1737
JONATHAN GOVE
1737-1761
RICHARD GOVE
1761-1832
RICHARD GOVE
1832-1847
JONATHAN GOVE
1847-1890
SARAH ELMA GOVE
1890-1897
WILLIAM HENRY GOVE
1897-1920

The west side is inscribed in Latin and states that this was Edward Gove's homefield from 1665, as follows:

EDVARDI GOVI
AGER
MDCLXV

Mr. Gove was interested in Esperanto, the world language which was produced a score of years ago, and wrote the inscription for the north side of the monument in that language, as follows:

LA HELAJU
HOROU KIE
DUM DUCENT
JAROJ ESTIS
LA FAJRUJO
DE LA FAMILIO
DE GOVE

In English, this inscription reads as follows: "This marks the sunny hours where for two hundred years was the hearthstone of the Gove family."

In Hampton Falls parish, Mr. Gove was surveyor of highways, assessor of taxes, etc. In 1821, he was taxed for one poll, one house, seventeen cultivated acres of land, two oxen, four cows, one horse and one hog.

Oct. 15, 1734, he presented a petition to the assembly praying for relief against a deed that his son clandestinely obtained from him; and relief was recommended and sent down by Col. Joseph Sherburn.<sup>1</sup>

DANIEL GOVE<sup>5</sup>, born in Hampton Falls, N. H., March 8, 1722. He lived in his native town, and was of the Friends' Society. When the town of Seabrook was established out of the town of Hampton Falls, in 1768, it was provided that residents of either of these towns, or parishes, as the act called them, might elect to be treated as belonging to the other. Accordingly, the families of Daniel Gove and of his son Daniel, though living in Hampton Falls, elected to be treated as of Seabrook. This provision of law lasted till 1791, and was made because the town acted as a parish, and while Hampton Falls was Congregational, Seabrook was Presbyterian.<sup>1</sup>

Mr. Gove married Rebecca, daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth Hunt of Hampton June 25, 1746. She was born in 1724; and was a Friend. He died at Seabrook Aug. 24, 1761. April 25, 1770, the court decreed that the real estate could not well be divided, and assigned it all to the eldest son, Daniel Gove, as he was willing to take it at the appraised value and pay cash to the other children for their shares as they became of age. She married, secondly, David Green of Kensington Jan. 2, 1763. Mr. Green's first wife was Ruth Gove (No. 71), sister of Mr. Gove.<sup>1</sup> She died at Weare March 2, 1807.

ELIJAH GOVE<sup>5</sup>, born in Hampton Falls, N. H., May 18, 1751. When a boy, March 31, 1767, he was bound out to Jonathan Dow and his wife Keziah during his minority; and when he became of age he was to have two suits of clothes, a pair of three-year-old steers and a lot of land in New Britain. His mother signed the indentures with him.

After his second marriage, in 1774, he entered Weare to live, driving the yoke of steers, with a man's saddle on one of them, and his wife riding a four-year-old colt, with a pair of saddle bags behind. In these bags and on the steers he carried all his household effects and other personal property. He settled in the southwestern part of the town, southwest of Mount Misery. There he built a frame house; and it is said that his wife carried all the bricks and mortar for the chimneys to the masons who built them. He sold this place, and, in 1788, bought what was recently known as the John Jewell place, west of Peacock brook, on the mountain road, on which was a frame house. There he spent the remainder of his life, and his son Samuel lived there after him.

He was surveyor of highways in Nottingham in 1774, and constable in Weare in 1784.

Although Mr. Gove is in the list of members of the Society of Friends in 1795, and his parents were members, his association with his wife's warlike family seems to have made him a soldier. June 6, 1776, he signed the "Association Test" in Weare, which most of the Friends refused to sign. He served two months at New York, in 1776, in Col. Nahum Baldwin's regiment. He marched from Weare to Charlestown No. 4 on the alarm of July 7, 1777, being discharged four days later.

Mr. Gove married, first, Ruth Johnson; and, second, Sarah, daughter of John and Anna (Cilley) Mills of Nottingham July

Joseph, son of Samuel and Phebe (Sanborn) Philbrick of Weare Jan. 24, 1797. He was born at Weare July 14, 1772. He was a land surveyor, being self-taught, and at the age of nineteen began to teach school in Jaffrey. He afterwards taught in Deering and other places; and was one of the first school inspectors or members of the school committee in Weare, serving for many years. He early became active in military affairs; and, in 1801, was appointed sergeant-major of the Ninth regiment of militia. He was soon promoted to adjutant, but a severe illness incapacitated him for further military service. He was a justice of the peace and quorum thirty-seven years, wrote deeds and wills, tried cases, was often a referee and solemnized marriages. He settled many estates, and was often agent for the town in the county courts. He was associate-justice of the court of sessions for four years, beginning in 1820. He was an active member and clerk of the Freewill Baptist Church in Weare. Although he was of the minor Federal party, he was town clerk, selectman and auditor. William Vaughn's regiment, and was present at the capitulation of the fortress June 17, 1745. He was one of the original grantees of Andover (New Britain), N. H., in 1746. He also appears as one of the grantees of a tract of land from the Masonian Proprietors; and was, also, in 1753, grantee of "lot fifteen" from John Tufton Mason. He served in the Eleventh company, Samuel Watts, captain, in Col. Nathaniel Meserve's regiment, in the expedition against Crown Point, having enlisted May 16, 1756, and being discharged Dec. —, 1756. His name is on the roll of soldiers in the French and Indian War, having enlisted April 17, 1759. As a fisherman from Seabrook, he appears on the roll of soldiers in the War of the Revolution in Capt. Winthrop Rowe's company, in Colonel Poor's regiment, June 3, 1775. He was also a soldier in Captain Weare's company, being mustered in May 15, 1777; and in Capt. Richard Weare's company, Third battalion of New Hampshire, commanded by Col. Alexander Scannell, in July, 1777. He is also recorded as enlisting in the Third regiment, 1777-8, from Seabrook.

Nov. 21, 1765, he signed a petition made by Presbyterians to have a separate parish in Hampton Falls; the final result being the formation of the town of Seabrook.

He was a party to a number of transfers of real estate.

 325—III. JACOB<sup>6</sup>, born in 1764. See family numbered "325."
 326—IV. ENOCH<sup>6</sup>, born in 17—. He was of unsound mind, and became a wanderer. He never married. Jan. 3, 1815, Samuel George and Ralph Johnson, both of Seabrook, were appointed his guardians. Brown's History of Hampton Falls, N. H., says of him: "Enoch Gove, called 'Coodle,' . . . took a strong dislike to his mother, and by the death of his father was left in early life to his own way. He was of a rambling disposition, taking long journeys upon foot, and had a great record for pedestrian achievements. At one time he shipped to Labrador on a fishing vessel and, not finding things to his liking, went ashore and walked home. He walked to New Orleans and from there into Mexico. On one of his journeys in New York State he was arrested as a vagrant, but was soon released. He usually carried some cooking utensils with him and prepared his own food while on his journeys. He collected bayberries and made bayberry tallow; he also made birch brooms, and had quite a stock of each on hand at the time of his death in 1855. He had a strong dislike for copper in any form, and would not use a copper kettle in which to render his tallow, or one which had any copper in its construction. He often came to this town to borrow a brass kettle in which to make tallow. He was an expert with a sickle and did much reaping when that work was done by hand, often being employed by the farmers in this town. He was generally known by the name of 'Old Coodle,' a name he much disliked. Those who addressed him by that name preferred to do it at a safe distance, as it was not safe to call him so at short range. While walking on the levee at New Orleans some sailors on a passing vessel from Newburyport called, 'Hello, Coodle.' He said, 'Has that ——— name got here?' With all his peculiarities he was a harmless man, and never made trouble when well used."

<sup>1</sup> Davis Loring says that Eleazer Gove "was killed in the battle of Saratoga or Burgoyne's surrender." Lydia Gove, his granddaughter, says he was killed at the retreat of Burgoyne, and that she once saw a man who stood at his side when he was shot. A tradition states that he was killed at the battle of Bunker Hill June 17, 1775.

DANIEL GOVE<sup>6</sup>, born in Hampton Falls, N. H., Feb. 22, 1749. He removed to Weare, N. H., in 1773, upon his marriage. He had worked for two summers there, upon land that had been conveyed to him, Aug. 23, 1770, by his late guardian and uncle Edward Gove.

He was a faithful member of the Society of Friends; and in 1776 refused to sign the "Association Test." He was one of the founders of the Monthly Meeting in 1795. Believing as a Quaker that all war was contrary to the law of God he would not pay taxes to support it. Therefore, during the Revolution, much of his property was sacrificed. Among other things a crow bar was set up at auction. None of his neighbors were willing to bid on it. Finally one man, less kindly than the others, gave a small sum and took the bar. But ever after when any one wished him to feel uncomfortable, he would be reminded of his bargain, and he never failed to lose his temper."<sup>1</sup>

He had a tannery at a mill site on Peacock river, or on one of its branches, called "Daniel Gove site, 1812."

He had the experiences of pioneer life. In 1784, he trapped wolves, and a great rock where he shot a wild turkey was long pointed out.

JOSIAH GOVE<sup>6</sup>, born in Hampton Falls, N. H., June 27, 1773. He lived in Weare, N. H.; and listened many times to the howling of wolves. Both himself and wife were members of the Society of Friends. They lived on the western portion of his father's farm, and the house was standing in 1888, one and a quarter miles west of Weare Center. They were known for their hospitality; their many friends were always welcome to their bountiful table, and their guests were made to feel entirely at home at their house. In 1818, he built additions to his house in order to better accommodate visiting friends.

He learned the trades of tanner and shoemaker from Ebenzer Breed, his wife's father, and the two carried on the business for nearly forty years. Josiah "took hides to tan on shares from Squire Shoves of Danvers, Mass., and made it a profitable business. His tannery was near his house, between Weare Centre and Clinton Grove."<sup>1</sup> The stone with which he ground the tan bark was still in existence in 1888 and used as a well cover at his old homestead, and its shaft as a gate post, the latter having been used for some purpose for more than a hundred years.

As early as 1823, Mr. Gove and his boys were making farmers' pegged boots and shoes to sell in Vermont, Canada and the South. In one year they produced twenty-three thousand pairs.<sup>2</sup>

He was one of the three men who, in 1834, furnished money to buy the materials for the Clinton Grove Academy building, the others being Moses Hodgdon and Levi Gove (No. 433). Josiah's contribution was two hundred and seventy-seven dollars. The next year, he was one of the ten men who formed a stock company and built the Academy boarding-house. He was school director of district 23 in 1822.

He was remarkably healthy, weighed about one hundred and eighty pounds, a good workman, an industrious and thrifty farmer, a good citizen, a kind and obliging neighbor and scrupulously honest.

In 1836, he played the triangle in the first brass band organized in Weare. He was a "crack shot," and noted for his success in trapping foxes.

Mr. Gove married Rebecca, daughter of Ebenezer and Mary (Green) Breed (half sister of Content (Breed), wife of David Gove (No. 190) Dec. 5, 1799. She was born Nov. 26, 1777. Her son Ira wrote that "She was held in high esteem by friends and neighbors and those who knew her best loved her most." They were both Friends. He died May 18, 1850; and she died Aug. 19, 1866, from a shock of paralysis, sustained five days before, during which time she lay in a stupor.

EBENEZER GOVE<sup>6</sup>, born at Hampton Falls, N. H., April 8, 1755. He settled in Wentworth, N. H., in 1775, when it was almost an unbroken wilderness. He was a millwright and farmer.<sup>1</sup> He removed to a farm in Wentworth.

During the year 1770 the first settlement was made in town. . . . Abel Davis cleared a small piece of land and built a log-house on the Jonathan Eames place, so called. . . . This house was west of the present buildings towards the river. He remained in town but a short time, removing to Vermont. His daughter, Mary Davis, afterward came into town and lived with Enoch Paige's family, and became the second wife of Ebenezer Gove, one of the early settlers, about 1780.<sup>2</sup>

The following extract seems to refer to this Ebenezer Gove,<sup>3</sup> though it gives the name as "John." Speaking of building the meeting house in that town it says:

Capt. John Gove, the witch-killer of Wentworth, and his two sons Edward and Winthrop, all excellent carpenters, finished off the house. Capt. Gove hired a room at the store Capt. Benj. Merrill built, and his daughters Dolly and Betsey cooked for and boarded them during the time.<sup>3</sup>

He served in the Revolution as a private in Capt. Nathaniel Hobbs' company on Pierce's Island Nov. 5, 1775, and drew a pension. He was styled "Captain." He held various town offices. In 1781, he petitioned for a ferry for Solomon Copps;<sup>4</sup> in 1799 for authority to elect a representative;<sup>5</sup> and in 1802 for the incorporation of the Universalist Society.<sup>6</sup>

Mr. Gove married, first, Mary, daughter of Enoch Paige of Wentworth April 16, 1778. She was born at Salisbury, Mass., June 17, 1752. He married, second, Mary, daughter of Abel

A mutual lady friend was with them when they returned. As they neared the bridge over Cocheco river, they overtook a man trundling a wheel-barrow, on which was a long stick of timber. As the man turned out, the forward end of the timber reared threateningly. The horse was frightened, and ran. Upon the bridge, the carriage struck the low guard rail, and the Misses Gove and Foss plunged into the river, but the other lady saved herself by catching hold of the rail. ## 431

EDWARD GOVE<sup>i</sup>, born at Seabrook, N. H., Sept. 15, 1792. He lived in his native town, about two miles north of the main road, on the place occupied by his ancestor, John Gove. He married Elizabeth Morrill of North Berwick, Me., Aug. 29, 1817. She was born May 28, 1797. They were both ministers of the Society of Friends. There was in circulation among Friends as early as the time of the Civil War, and probably before the Separation in the Society, in 1845, a poem of unknown authorship, characterizing many well-known Quaker preachers. In it occurred these lines:

Edward Gove! Edward Gove!
Though thy spirit may rove

The following poem was written by John G. Whittier and presented to Edward and Elizabeth Gove upon the fifty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. It is not included in his collected works, but was published in a slightly different form after his death in the New England Magazine:

To
Edward and Elizabeth Gove on the
Fifty-Fifth Anniversary of their marriage
29th of 8th mo., 1872.

Full fifty years ago you took
Each others hand in meeting,
No wedding guests by railroad came,
No telegrams sent greeting.

Here, in a plain old-fashioned way
Your common life beginning;
While Edward cut his salt-marsh hay,
Elizabeth was spinning.

And using still without abuse
The gifts of God so ample,
Against the folly of the times
You set your wise example.

You saw the world run railroad speed,
And show with show competing,
And in your plain old one-horse shay
Jogged off to mill and meeting.

And while the rival sects their charms
Urged round you fast and faster
You wrought with patient quietude
The service of the Master.

You heard more clear the still small voice,
As outward sounds grew louder,
Unmixed you kept your simple faith,
And made no spiritual chowder.

You had your hours of doubt and fear,
In common with all living
You erred, you failed, you felt each day
The need of God's forgiving.

What years of toil and care were yours,
What trials and what losses.
It matters not. They only wear
The crowns who bear the crosses.

And nought avails it now to tell
The story of your trials,
What ills from granted wishes grew,
What blessings from denials.

Suffice it that by thorny ways
You reached the heights of duty,
That the sharp chisel of the Lord
Shaped out your spiritual beauty.

And thus you gained a clearer sense
Of human lack and failing,
That truer made your warning words,
Your counsel more availing.

Now sweet and calm the peace of age
Looks from the Quaker bonnet,
The gray head matches well the drab
Of the broad brim upon it.

While all around you old and young
Obey the tryant Fashion,
Your Christian freedom feels for all
Her abject slaves compassion.

Still tenderly and graciously
A father's hand was leading;
And all the while your utmost need
His mercy was exceeding.

Now in that peaceful trust, which knows
 No fear, nor vain desire,
 You wait the voice the prophet heard
 Which bade him come up higher.

More than this fading world of time,
 The world that watches o'er you;
 And few the living friends compared
 With dear ones gone before you.

Where are the church's fathers now
 And where its nursing mothers?
 The places that the worthies held
 So long are filled by others.

Yet tender memory sees them still
 The gallery seats possessing;
 And mingling with the living bow
 Their reverent heads in blessing.

O! may the faith which strengthened them
 Your human spirits strengthen,
 As silently and solemnly
 The evening shadows lengthen.

And when, as come it must to all,
 To you the call is given,
 Wide may the gates of pearl unfold
 To welcome you to heaven.

Mrs. Gove died April 29, 1873, at the age of seventy-five, and was buried in the old graveyard at Seabrook village. She was a typical Quakeress, with all a Quaker's simplicity, and lived her quiet life in peace and faith and goodness. Again the poet Whittier wrote of her, "my mother's friend," as he calls her, and of her graciousness, in his poem entitled, "The Friend's Burial," as follows:

THE FRIEND'S BURIAL.

My thoughts are all in yonder town,
 Where, wept by many tears,
 To-day my mother's friend lays down
 The burden of her years.

True as in life, no poor disguise
 Of death with her is seen,
 And on her simple casket lies
 No wreath of bloom and green.

O, not for her the florist's art,
 The mocking weeds of woe,
 Dear memories in each mourner's heart
 Like heaven's white lilies blow.

And all about the softening air
Of new-born sweetness tells,
And the ungathered May-flowers wear
The tints of ocean shells.

The old, assuring miracle
Is fresh as heretofore;
And earth takes up its parable
Of life from death once more.

Here organ-swell and church-bell toll
Methinks but discord were—
The prayerful silence of the soul
Is best befitting her.

No sound should break the quietude
Alike of earth and sky;—
O wandering wind in Seabrook wood,
Breathe but a half-heard sigh!

Sing softly, spring-bird, for her sake;
And thou not distant sea,
Lapse lightly as if Jesus spake,
And thou wert Galilee!

For all her quiet life flowed on
As meadow streamlets flow,
Where fresher green reveals alone
The noiseless ways they go.

From her loved place of prayer I see
The plain-robed mourners pass,
With slow feet treading reverently
The graveyard's springing grass.

Make room, O mourning ones, for me,
Where, like the friends of Paul,
That you no more her face shall see
You sorrow most of all.

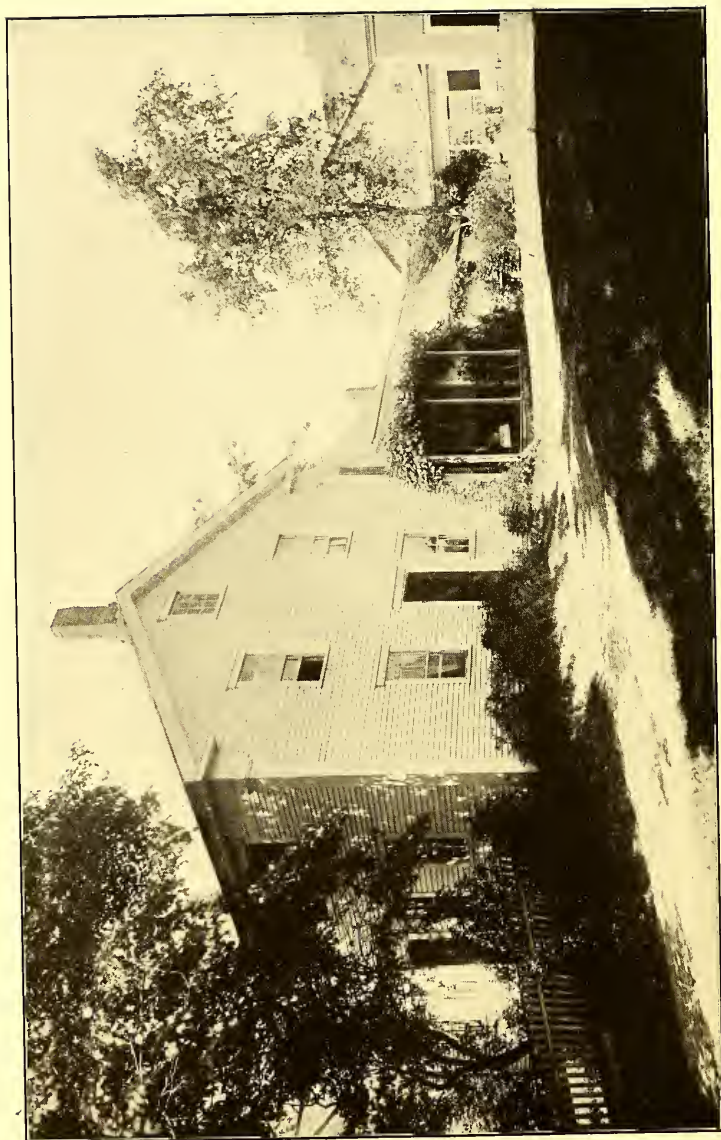

Her path shall brighten more and more
Unto the perfect day;
She cannot fail of peace who bore
Such peace with her away,

O sweet, calm face that seemed to wear
The look of sins forgiven!
O voice of prayer that seemed to bear
Our own needs up to heaven!

How reverent in our midst she stood,
Or knelt in grateful praise!
What grace of Christian womanhood
Was in her household ways!

For still her holy living meant
No duty left undone;
The heavenly and the human blent
Their kindred loves in one.

HOME OF MOSES GOVE

And if her life small leisure found
 For feasting ear and eye,
 And Pleasure, on her daily round,
 She passed unpausing by,

Yet with her went a secret sense
 Of all things sweet and fair,
 And Beauty's gracious providence
 Refreshed her unaware.

She kept her line of rectitude
 With love's unconscious ease;
 Her kindly instincts understood
 All gentle courtesies.

An inborn charm of graciousness
 Made sweet her smile and tone,
 And glorified her farm-wife dress
 With beauty not its own.

The dear Lord's best interpreters
 Are humble human souls;
 And Gospel of a life like hers
 Is more than books or scrolls.

From scheme and creed the light goes out,
 The saintly fact survives;
 The blessed Master none can doubt
 Revealed in holy lives.

Mr. Gove died at Seabrook Sept. 3, 1877, lacking twelve days of being eighty-five, and he, too, was buried in the old graveyard at Seabrook village.

H., where he was born Nov. 17, 1805. She was a pupil of her husband, and known among her schoolmates as "Little Mary." They were Friends. He was a man of much note, and a teacher of unusual ability. Besides studying in the public schools and assiduous home study and reading, he attended the Friends Boarding School at Providence, R. I., in 1826 and was probably an assistant teacher in that school for several terms. He then taught, for two successive winters, a district school at Clinton Grove, in Weare. On the establishment of Clinton Grove Academy there, about the middle of August, 1834, he became its principal, and continued such for fourteen years, making it noteworthy by his remarkable powers as an educator. He established a debating society in connection with the school and took an active part as a debater in which he is said to have shown powers of oratory equal to the best displayed in Congress. He joined in forming an anti-slavery society of sixty members, early became an ardent abolitionist and was always ready to assist fugitive slaves at his house which was a station of the so-called "under-ground-railway." Leaving Weare about 1847, for several years he taught the Walnut Grove School in his native town of Lee. He then returned to Weare where he taught the district school at North Weare for two winters and another term at Clinton Grove Academy. In 1849, he assisted John G. Whittier in editing the Pennsylvania Freeman, an anti-slavery journal. Whittier, whose cousin had married Mr. Cartland's brother, was an intimate friend of his. Mr. Cartland also edited the New Hampshire Journal of Education, the White Mountain Torrent, a temperance paper, and was an editor, especially of the educational department, of the New Hampshire Journal of Agriculture, published during the last few years of his life, to which he contributed pungent paragraphs signed "C." He contributed many articles to the National Era, published at Washington, writing at Weare as the ostensible "Washington correspondent" of the paper. He also contributed to magazines. A short time before his death he delivered a fine oration on the Mission of Poetry before the other alumni of the Friends School at Providence. He was inspector of schools at Weare from 1852 to 1856 and from 1858 to 1860, was a member of the New Hampshire house of representatives in 1861 and held other offices. He spent the last years of his life on his farm on Burnt hill, a mile from the North Weare railroad station. In person he was over six feet in height and of a striking presence. Mrs. Cartland died at Weare July 21, 1860; and he died at Providence, of pneumonia, July 5, 1863. Whittier wrote the following poem upon his death:

A MEMORIAL.

M. A. C.

O, thicker, deeper, darker growing,
 The solemn vista to the tomb
 Must know henceforth another shadow,
 And give another cypress room.

In love surpassing that of brothers,
 We walked, O friend, from childhood's day;
 And, looking back o'er fifty summers,
 Our footprints track a common way.

One in our faith, and one our longing
 To make the world within our reach
 Somewhat the better for our living,
 And gladder for our human speech.

Thou heard'st with me the far-off voices,
 The old beguiling song of fame,
 But life to thee was warm and present,
 And love was better than a name.

To homely joys and loves and friendships
 Thy genial nature fondly clung;
 And so the shadow on the dial
 Ran back and left thee always young.

And who could blame the generous weakness
Which, only to thyself unjust,
So overprized the worth of others,
And dwarfed thy own with self-distrust?

All hearts grew warmer in the presence
Of one who, seeking not his own,
Gave freely for the love of giving,
Nor reaped for self the harvest sown.

Thy greeting smile was pledge and prelude
Of generous deeds and kindly words;
In thy large heart were fair guest-chambers,
Open to sunrise and the birds!

The task was thine to mould and fashion
Life's plastic newness into grace:
To make the boyish heart heroic,
And light with thought the maiden's face.

O'er all the land, in town and prairie,
With bended heads of mourning, stand
The living forms that owe their beauty
And fitness to thy shaping hand.

Thy call has come in ripened manhood,
The noonday calm of heart and mind,
While I, who dreamed of thy remaining
To mourn me, linger still behind:

Live on, to own, with self-upbraiding,
A debt of love still due from me,—
The vain remembrance of occasions,
Forever lost, of serving thee.

It was not mine among thy kindred
To join the silent funeral prayers,
But all that long sad day of summer
My tears of mourning dropped with theirs.

All day the sea-waves sobbed with sorrow,
The birds forgot their merry trills:
All day I heard the pines lamenting
With thine upon thy homestead hill.

Green be those hillside pines forever,
And green the meadowy lowlands be,
And green the old memorial beeches,
Name-carven in the woods of Lee!

Still let them greet the life companions
Who thither turn their pilgrim feet,
In every mossy line recalling
A tender memory sadly sweet.

O friend! if thought and sense avail not
To know thee henceforth as thou art,
That all is well with thee forever
I trust the instincts of my heart.

Thine be the quiet habitations,
 Thine the green pastures, blossom-sown,
 And smiles of saintly recognition,
 As sweet and tender as thy own.

Thou comest not from the hush and shadow
 To meet us, but to three we come;
 With thee we never can be strangers,
 And where thou art must still be home.

William H. Gove (No. 1009) of Weare also wrote a poem to his memory entitled, "Threnody." IRA GOVE<sup>7</sup>, born at Weare, N. H., July 4, 1805. He attended the public schools of Weare, and worked on his father's farm and in his shoe-shop until he was twenty-one years of age. He then went to Concord, and worked a short time in the custom shoe-shop of Breed, Hoag & Dow, who were Weare men; and in the Fall of 1826 returned to Weare. He was admitted to Aurora Lodge, No. 43, of Freemasons at Henniker. He went into partnership with Allen Sawyer, and they bought the dwelling house, tannery, currier and shoe shops of Daniel Osborne at the cross-roads, a mile north of Friends South meeting house. They manufactured for the country trade the first ladies' shoes made in Weare. Early in the spring of 1828, he sold his interest in the business to his partner, and removed to Lynn, where he began the business of a shoe manufacturer, which was soon discontinued, and he became foreman for Samuel Boyce. In this position he remained for three years. In 1832, he resumed business as a shoe-manufacturer in Lynn and continued in it for seven years, producing shoes for the Southern and Western markets. At the end of this time, ill-health induced him to leave Lynn; and in 1840 he removed to Painesville, Ohio. There he remodeled a steam flouring mill and ran it until 1844, when he returned to Lynn. In 1846, he returned to Weare to live on his father's farm, and in company with his brother William engaged in the manufacture of women's, misses' and children's boots and shoes for the New England trade. His son George and nephew and son-in-law Josiah came into the business in 1866, and, in 1871, Ira retired from business. He lived in 1888 in Pittsfield, N. H., and finally removed to Claremont, N. H.

For many years, Mr. Gove collected and recorded all the information he could obtain regarding the Gove family; and this work is based upon his notes and records. He was an indefatigable and diligent investigator, and great credit is due to him for preserving so much relating to the family history. When he had grown so old and feeble that he felt unable to carry the work on longer he turned over all his notes and records to William H. Gove (No. 1967), requesting him that when the family history should be published he should be given due credit for the work which he had done upon it.

While residing in Lynn, he was first lieutenant in an artillery company of the militia, and for several years was foreman of the leading company of firemen. In 1853, he is recorded as a member of the First Universalist Church in Weare, and he represented Weare in the New Hampshire house of representatives in 1864 and 1865.

April 24, 1862—3 P. M.

Hon. E. M. Stanton,
Secretary of War:

Work on first parallel commenced today under cover of timber. Exposed part on left of Wormley's Creek will be commenced to-night. Will commence under cover of brush the part on right of Wormley's Creek to-morrow morning and complete exposed part to-morrow night. Will also at once commence new batteries. Enemy quiet to-day. All going well.

At Yorktown, his regiment scaled the ramparts, and Colonel Gove was the first Union man on the Confederate fortifications after the war opened. "But his career was brief. On June 27, 1862, he occupied with his regiment the centre of the battle line at Gaines' Mill [in Virginia], and for the most of the day was in the hottest of the fight. At night he was ordered to retreat, and as his men were giving the enemy a parting shot he was pierced through the heart by a minie ball and fell dead. . . . He was buried on the battle-field."

The accompanying portrait of Colonel Gove is copied from an oil painting by Adna Tenney which was presented to the State of New Hampshire by Colonel Gove's widow. In 1874, the legislature passed resolutions, thanking her for the picture, which hangs conspicuously nearly opposite the main entrance to the State capitol.

CAPT. WARREN GOVE<sup>r</sup>, born at Edgecomb, Me., in 1816. His early life was spent at sea. He shipped as a sailor before the mast and rose to the rank of captain, but fate seemed against him, as he again and again suffered shipwreck and disaster. The second ship of which he was master was wrecked and lost in the vicinity of the West Indies, and he barely escaped with his life. By way of Cape Horn, he reached California in 1853. One of the earliest sailing vessels to enter Puget Sound was the bark Sarah Warren, which Captain Gove brought to Steilacoom for a cargo of piling to be used in the construction of docks at San Francisco. Washington, at this time, was a part of Oregon. He quitted the sea and went to the Puget Sound country to live. In 1854, his wife joined him, having come from Boston, Mass. They established their new home at Steilacoom, where they afterward lived and died.

He brought the first American steamboat to Puget Sound. This was the Fairy, which was destroyed by an explosion about 1855.

Captain Gove figured prominently in the events of pioneer times, and was familiar with every phase of frontier life in the Northwest. He was often called to handle difficult situations which arose in the uprisings of the Indians and to settle the questions incident to pioneer conditions. He never feared to express his honest opinions, and though men might differ from him they never doubted his integrity or devotion to duty.

He was a warm personal friend of Gov. Isaac I. Stevens, the first governor of Washington Territory, who had a great respect for Captain Gove and his ability. Governor Stevens appointed him quartermaster of volunteers, in 1855, when the whole country was aroused over the Indian troubles, martial law having been declared. He held various offices of honor and trust, including that of government inspector of customs prior to 1860, while the office was maintained at Steilacoom. He was afterward in charge of the Puyallup Indian Agency.

He was accustomed to visit or write to his brother Charles every ten years. He was a good lecturer, and often wrote poetry. He was in the South when the Rebellion broke out and was forced into the Confederate army. He deserted as soon as possible, came North, took his mother's maiden name and as "Harry Burbank" enlisted in the Union army. He served throughout the war, and was present at the surrender of Lee. CHARLES HENRY GOVE<sup>8</sup>, born at Easton, N. Y., Aug. 24, 1828. He was reared in Manlius, N. Y., where he attended the public school and took a course in the academy. He began to learn the foundry business in 1846, at Syracuse, N. Y. In 1849, having learned the trade, he went to Norwalk, Ohio, where he engaged in the moulding business, and was for five years manager of a foundry. He had charge of the Bay City Foundries at Sandusky, Ohio, two years, and of the Lake Shore Foundry at Elkhart, Ind., for some time. He then returned to Norwalk and took charge of the foundry there. In 1887, in company with his son Ernest, he established a foundry at Norwalk, in which they made exclusively the castings for the Wheeler & Lake Erie Railroad. The firm name was C. H. Gove & Co. They sold the business to Mr. Gove's son Otis G. Gove and David Higgins April 1, 1893. Mr. Gove then settled on a farm at Kipton, Ohio, where he lived until 1903, when he sold his farm and returned to Norwalk township. There, he purchased a small place.

In 1850, he became a Christian, and throughout his life tried to observe the Golden Rule. He was a boy with his boys; he did not believe in growing old; and was a remarkable man. In 1876 and 1877, he was a member of the city council of Norwalk. He never lost but two teeth, and his hearing and sight remained good through life.

Mr. Gove married Sarah Lucinda, daughter of Robert and Barbara (McAllister) McGorgan July 14, 1851, at Norwalk. She was born in Mansfield, Ohio, May 11, 1833. She fell, as she started to go up stairs, and broke her hip. She lived seven weeks, and died from the shock June 17, 1911, having been married nearly sixty years. Mr. Gove was about the house, without his cane, went to bed at five, talked with his girls about his leaving them and seemed strong and cheerful, but fell asleep about eleven o'clock, March 8, 1915, aged eighty-six. They are both buried in Woodlawn Cemetery, Norwalk.

Mr. Gove joined the Masons, was a Republican most of his life, and was interested in and well-informed on all current questions. He was five feet and seven inches tall, and weighed one hundred and sixty pounds. His hair was white for years, yet he neither looked nor acted old. He wrote a few pieces of poetry, which a daughter put into booklet form for his children. The following sonnet was written as

MY LAST REQUEST.

When in the grave my friends have laid me,
 And loving lips have breathed adieu,
 Let no one dare to upbraid me
 Or draw my frailties forth to view.
 But lay my faults in the grave beside me,
 Then let the clods upon me fall;
 And as they from the cold world hide me,
 Let them hide my faults and all.
 Let there be joy instead of weeping,
 That rest is found for heart and head
 Then leave me in my Savior's keeping,
 For if he lives I can't be dead;—
 Only dead to sin and strife,
 And soon to wake to endless life.

For the benefit of his health, the family removed to Minnesota about 1872; and lived three years at Stanton, then a little place, about five miles from Northfield. At that time, there was a post-office, store, flour mill, schoolhouse, church and blacksmith shop. Nearly all the inhabitants were from Strafford. About 1875, they removed to Granite Falls, Minn., a lovely little town of about fifteen hundred population. He frequently returned to Vermont for visits. ### 1549

DANA B. GOVE<sup>s</sup>, born at Strafford, Vt., Sept. 14, 1811. He had few educational advantages, yet in the affairs of the nation, in so far as they could be learned from the newspapers, he was well posted. Like most New England people, he was a great admirer of Daniel Webster, and took a great interest in Senator Morrel, whom he knew as a boy in his home town of Strafford. He read everything he could get to read on any subject, and had a good memory. He was a mason by trade. He had steel blue eyes, fine thin brown hair, and was five feet and ten inches in height, with broad but sloping shoulders. He never wore a mustache, and always shaved below his mouth. Otherwise, he wore a full beard. His forehead was high, broad and well-developed. When he died, at the age of seventy, his hair was not gray, though his beard was nearly white. His daughter has in her possession his commission as lieutenant, dated June 6, 1837, and signed by Silas H. Jenison, governor of Vermont. Mr. Gove married, first, Alice, daughter of Jonathan and Susannah (Hosford) Maltby April 12, 1838, at Vershire, Vt., where she was born March 31, 1817. She had the advantage of one year's schooling at Thetford Academy. She was a rather small woman, with butter-nut brown eyes and black hair. They lived at Marshfield, Vt.

In August, 1844, with his wife, son Harlan and daughters Mary and Marcella, Mr. Gove journeyed West. Mrs. Gove was twenty-seven, Harlan five, Mary three years and Marcella only twenty-one months old. Mr. Gove's brother Nathaniel and the latter's wife and daughter, then a year old, went with them. Mr. Gove's father, Ebenezer Gove of Strafford, drove them to Montpelier, where they took the stage for Lake Champlain, where their two week's journey by water began. At Racine, Mr. Gove heard of the need of a mason at Delavan, Wis., and with their goods and families loaded on a teamster's wagon, they were driven fifty miles over a plank road to Delavan. They arrived at their destination Sept. 2, 1844. They boarded at the tavern there for two weeks, until they could secure a house to live in. Judge Allen, a bachelor, rented them his house, which was just completed. It stood on the corner of Walworth avenue and North Third street, where the Wisconsin State Bank now stands. Later, when the owner went East for a wife, they removed to a house on the south side of Walworth avenue, between Main and Terrace streets. In the meantime, Mr. Gove purchased from the Phoenix a half acre on the corner of North Third and McDowell streets. As early as possible the following spring a double farm-house, to accommodate both families, was put up on the lot, the frame being of oak, sawed from native timber and the laths split oak boards. They moved in early in April, before the doors and windows were put in place. The street had not been properly surveyed, and later the house was found to be too near the road. It had to be moved back a few feet to its present position. It is an old landmark, and little changed.

Mrs. Gove died April 21, 1858, in the same room where her son Harlan had died twenty minutes before. The double funeral was held in the Congregational Church, the pastor, Rev. Joseph Collie, conducting the services. Their bodies were laid in one grave in the little cemetery a few rods from the house. Ten years later, their bodies, with those of the three children who had died in infancy were removed to the Spring Grove Cemetery, which had just been established. Mr. Gove married, secondly, Eliza Ann, daughter of ——— and ——— (Barlow) Burrows and widow of ——— Jaquet July 2, 1869. She was born at Ticonderoga, N. Y., July 4, 1827; and was divorced from Mr. Jaquet.

In politics, Mr. Gove was a staunch Republican. He belonged to the Congregational Church in Vermont; but, for reasons that seemed good to him, he did not present his letter of dismissal to the church in Delavan, though he attended the church until after his second marriage, when he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was a man of strict integrity, and commanded the respect of all who knew him. For many years, he was a member of the Masonic Lodge. In 1876, he was elected trustee of the Village of Delavan. Mr. Gove died at Delavan Oct. 25, 1881; and she died at Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 13, 1900.

Children:

- 2603—I. HARLAN PAGE<sup>8</sup>, born Feb. 8, 1839, at Fairlee, Vt. He had dark brown hair; and was a young man of promise, a student, and industrious in every way. When George Cotton was postmaster he was a clerk in the post-office and at other times, when not attending school, he worked with his father. He saved the money he earned to pay for a college course in Beloit, which he intended to commence in the fall of 1858, but he died April 21, 1858, at the age of nineteen. It was his ambition to become a lawyer.
- 2604—II. MARY JANE<sup>8</sup>, born Oct. 15, 1840, at Strafford. She had dark brown hair and was tall and spare. When she was seventeen, her mother's death left to her the care of the family, and this care was continued for eleven years—until her father remarried. Before her mother's death, she united with the Methodist Church, and later became a teacher in the Sunday school. She died at Delavan, of consumption, unmarried, Aug. 2, 1870, aged twenty-nine.
- 2605—III. MARCELLA<sup>8</sup>, born Nov. 10, 1842, at Marshfield. She had gray eyes, thin fine brown hair and a high full forehead, like her father. She was a good scholar and possessed a good memory. In 1860, she united with the Congregational Church. She married Oscar Newton, son of Henry and Mary Emily (Horton) Francisco Feb. 20, 1862. He was born at Knox's Corner, Augusta, N. Y., Oct. 16, 1840; and resides at Delavan. When they were married, Mr. Francisco hired a house in which to live, but Marcella's father said: "No, begin in your own house." So her father hired a carpenter to erect a small frame house on the corner of his half-acre of land, and he and his son George did the mason work. Mr. Francisco accepted a bond for a deed, and paid for the title after he had earned and saved sufficient money. The two families lived in the same yard happily for several years. Then sorrow came. Silently, one by one, the tenants of the old house left it. The two houses still stand, but in the old house strangers come and go. Mr. Francisco retains the old home; it is too full of sacred memories to be parted with. Child: 1. Mary Alice<sup>10</sup>, born Jan. 31, 1864, at Delavan. She is of medium size, like her mother, has gray eyes and light brown hair. She is a graduate of the Delavan high school, being a member of the class of 1883; and lives with her parents in the little house, having never been married.

ROYAL HATCH GOVE, ESQ.<sup>8</sup>, born at Strafford, Vt., Jan. 16, 1830. He attended the graded schools and high school of Strafford and afterward the academies at Thetford, Vt., and Meriden, N. H. When eighteen, he went to Boston, Mass., and worked in a mercantile establishment. Subsequently, for three years, he taught school in Vermont, New Hampshire and Jacksonville, Ill. He then returned to his native state, and engaged in farming for two years. During and prior to this period, he devoted his leisure hours to the study of law; and, in 1856, located in the practice of his profession at Kilbourne City, Wis., removing to Rochester, Minn., in 1866. He temporarily relinquished his legal pursuit early in the sixties, and engaged in the grain business, in which he was greatly successful, until the panic of 1873. He then returned to his law practice, in which he was actively and successfully engaged for many years in Rochester, serving as city attorney for several terms. For a number of years he was a partner with R. A. Jones, who became Chief Justice of Washington Territory.

Mr. Gove was one of the best known members of the Masonic fraternity in the country. For nine terms he was Worshipful Master of his lodge, and was also Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of the State of Minnesota in 1886. He was also High Priest of his chapter and a Knight Templar in the York branch of the order; was Knight Commander of the Court of Honor; and was elected to the thirty-third degree of the Ancient Scottish Rite Masonry.

He was a Presbyterian in religion; always a Republican in politics; and greatly respected for integrity of character and unusual mental attainments.

He disposed of the paper and removed to St. Louis, Mo. There he engaged in bank-note engraving and lithography until Sept. 1, 1889, when he became a citizen of Tacoma, Wash. He became active in the business life of the city, being associated with some of its largest enterprises. He is well-known in title and real estate circles throughout the Northwest. He was one of the incorporators of the Tacoma Abstract and Title Insurance Company, which, with other similar concerns, was afterwards merged in the Commonwealth Title Trust Company, Mr. Gove becoming its president and manager. He is still identified with the company. He is a director of the Puget Sound Bank and Trust Company, president of the Reliance Land Company, and has many other interests in Tacoma and along the Pacific Coast. CARLOS GOVE<sup>8</sup>, born in New Hampshire April 19, 1817. He ran away from home when he was sixteen years old. He enlisted in the United States Regular Army in which he served three years, and participated in the Seminole Indian War in Florida. He then moved west to the frontier, then to Council Bluffs, Iowa, was a gunsmith at Glenwood, Iowa, in 1867, and continued in the front line of the westward moving parties until he reached Colorado, where he settled.

Forty years after he ran away from home, he visited New Hampshire, and failed to meet any one to welcome him, neither did he find any one who remembered him, except one old man who dimly referred to a young scapegrace who lived in an earlier day. Carlos made his stay short, and returned to Denver, where he lived.

Mr. Gove was of unusually sterling character, eminent for integrity, was an alderman, and generally a reliable citizen of the old-fashioned sort—one whose word was always accepted.

His relations with the Indians were intimate and friendly. His greatness was as a frontiersman and rifle shot; up to his death he ranked first as a rifleman. He conducted a gun store in Denver, and with the Indians he had a great trade.

He married several times, having a second wife when at Glenwood in 1867. He died in Denver Aug. —, 1901.

"In my time I have seen not a little of this old world. I was twenty years old in Vermont, twenty-one in the city of London, twenty-two in Virginia City, Mont. The gold excitement drew me to Virginia City in 1864. and to get there I had to cross what was then called the 'Great Plains' with an ox team. It took from the 16th of April to the 18th of August to get up there in the Ruby Valley, four months, when one can now cover the distance in less than four days. I spent sixteen months in the gold fields of Montana, while the mining excitement was at its height, and millions of dollars were being taken from the earth. Then I struck out for the south and in Austin, Nev., I celebrated my twenty-third birthday. But I didn't stay there long. When I was twenty-four, I was back in my boyhood home in Vermont. Pendulum-like, I again started on the swing back to the west again, and my twenty-fifth birthday was spent in Ohio. And I've been a Buckeye ever since."

HON. HIRAM GOVE<sup>9</sup>, born at Lincoln, Vt., July 10, 1828. About October, 1849, with his brother Joshua he went to live with their uncle Moses Dennis Gove at Salem, Ohio. April 19, 1850, Hiram wrote: "It was competition that built me; I always thought I had the same right to advance my views that others had." In another letter, written in 1850, he says: "I find by thorough investigation that we are a slow family to get to maturity." In the spring or summer of 1853 he went to California to the gold-mining country and for some fifteen years resided at various places on the Pacific slope. Much of his experiences during this period is unknown, as he would not write home when in bad luck. April 3, 1859, he was at Roseburg, Ore. Returning some time afterward to California the party in which he traveled was attacked by hostile Indians, who sent poisoned arrows flying about them. He went to Truckee Meadows, Nev., and was a member of the senate of Nevada just before that territory was admitted as a state. Finally, he became superintendent of a gold mine in Montana, or near there, and made a little money. He visited his father's home in Lynn, Mass., in 1869, and in the same year removed to Florida, where he settled at Clay Springs or Apopka, in Orange County. He induced his sister Maria and her husband and her brother Joshua to remove there also, but the brother did not like that country, and after a few months stay returned north in 1871. Hiram joined him after a time and they settled on some land in or near Crete, Neb. He became dissatisfied in time with this venture, and after about five years returned to Florida in 1876; stopping in the summer of that year to visit at his wife's old home in the Catskill mountains. Reaching Florida, he settled at Lake Maitland. Several years later, he left Florida with his family, and settled in the State of Washington. He worked on a railroad there and met with an accident by being thrown from a hand car, which may have shortened his life. He was a man of marked force, and originality and independence of character, with a tendency to impatience with the conditions in which he was placed, and of a roving disposition.

Mr. Gove married Martha, daughter of Daniel Harrington of Jewett, N. H., Aug. 4, 1870, at Apopka, Fla. She was born Oct. 27, 1843. He died in the State of Washington Aug. 19, 1901. Children:

JOSHUA VARNEY GOVE<sup>9</sup>, born at Lincoln, Vt., April 26, 1831. In 1849, he removed with his brother Hiram to Salem, Ohio, where their uncle Moses Dennis Gove then resided. March 5, 1851, he was at his uncle Pelatiah Gove's house in Lincoln, Vt., probably on a visit; and May 21, 1854, he was at Salem, Ohio. In the autumn of that year he appears to have joined a party from that town going West to locate in some unimproved townships; and in November he had a load of cattle from Salem, which he was taking to Iowa City or vicinity. He went to Hesper, Iowa, where he worked for Russel Taber, a prosperous man, brother of the wife of his uncle Daniel Gove and of the wife of his uncle Pelatiah Gove. April 2, 1857, he had a removal certificate from the Friend's Meeting at Starksboro, Vt., to Lynn, Iowa. Nov. 7, 1858, his sister Mary wrote that he had "the Oregon fever," and might soon remove to Oregon. Just before his marriage, he moved across the state line to a town in Winneshick County, Minn., and went to farming. For several years, he was a justice of the peace, and cases were tried before him. He was elected chairman of the supervisors of his town, apparently in 1865, as on March 15, 1869, he was reelected to that office for the fifth time.

In 1870, he was induced by his brother Hiram to remove to Apopka, Fla.; but, not liking the experiment, returned north after about five months, leaving there April 13, 1871, having terminated his business connection with his brother Jan. 1, 1871. He returned north, by wagons drawn by horses. Mrs. Gove drove one of the four-horse teams, holding the baby Howard on her lap. The Indians, buffalo, antelopes and prairie dogs roamed the state. He engaged in farming on a quarter section of land two miles east of the Big Blue River and five miles from Dewitt, Neb. He built a house and barns, broke up the primitive prairie and raised grain and livestock. In 1873 and 1874 the migrating grasshopper or locust came and partly destroyed the crops. In the autumn of 1875, by team and lumber wagon, he removed to a farm four miles west of Bennett and south-east of Lincoln, Neb., where they lived in a granary and stable until a house was erected. In this stable, their son Arthur was born. Mr. Gove became a prosperous farmer, having a large and fertile farm of three hundred and twenty acres, on which he spent the remainder of his life. He was a strong and rugged man. His widow now owns the farm and his daughter Effie lives in the house which Mr. Gove built in 1877.

He married Candace A., daughter of Joseph and Lydia (Carpenter) Worth Jan. 1, 1862. She was born at Starksboro Aug. 14, 1844. He died at his home, of cancer of the stomach, March 21, 1911, in his eightieth year. She married, secondly, Rev. Enoch Harper of Cheney June 9, 1914, in Omaha. He was born in Uppertract, Pendleton County, W. Va., March 8, 1842; and preached at Parkersburg, Grafton and Pennsboro, W. Va., and in Longmont, Loveland and Denver, Col. He then preached at Olin, Iowa, Montella, Ventura, Riverside and Castalia. Then he went to Nebraska and served as presiding elder four years, subsequently preaching at Julian and Cheney, being fifty-one and one-half years in the ministry. He married, first, Jane Heckert March 26, 1868, at Troy, W. Va. Rev. William Otterbein Harper, a Presbyterian minister, of Laurel, Neb., and Herbert Gideon Austin Harper, Esq., of Glenside, Can., were his children. Mr. and Mrs. Harper live in Bethany, Neb.

She was a lover of flowers and plants. She had fair complexion, brown hair and blue eyes; was five feet and eight and one-half inches tall; and weighed one hundred and forty pounds. HOME OF HON. WILLIAM HENRY GOVE

1967

HON. WILLIAM HENRY GOVE<sup>9</sup>, born at South Berwick, Me., Sept. 4, 1851. He lived in his father's family until his marriage (in 1882). He disliked work on the farm, and as an alternative applied himself to study, of which he became very fond. Having practically exhausted the resources of the country district school in his native town, he was for two terms, Nov. 14, 1864, to April, 1865, a student at Oak Grove Seminary, a Friends' boarding school at Vassalboro, Me. On removing to Lynn, for about six weeks, he was a student in the grammar school at Gravesend; then in June, 1866, he entered the Lynn high school, from which he graduated in May, 1869, and was awarded a book as a prize. The next month he passed the examination for admission to Harvard College. Being without means to enter at that time, he secured a position as clerk, at Salem, Mass., in the law office of John W. Porter, Esq., of Danvers, Mass., who, at that time, in addition to his law practice, had an extensive business in collecting claims of discharged soldiers and others against the United States government. While so employed, William studied law, and was admitted to practice in September, 1872.

Having again passed the examinations for admission to Harvard College, he entered that institution in 1872, and graduated in 1876, with the degree of A. B., and with honors in history, being the second scholar in the class. In 1877, he graduated from the Harvard law school, with the degree of LL.B. He practised law in Salem from 1877 to 1885, with his former employer as a partner in the firm of Porter & Gove, and alone from 1885 to 1900.

He was a member of the school committee of Lynn, 1878-1881; and as such revised the Rules and Regulations of the committee and the course of study, and also served on the high school committee.

Mr. Gove married Aroline Chase, daughter of Isaac and Lydia (Estes) Pinkham<sup>1</sup> Jan. 5, 1882, at Lynn. She was born at Bedford, Mass., June 17, 1857; and graduated from the Lynn <sup>1</sup> Lydia Estes was descended from Robert Estes<sup>1</sup> and his wife Dorothy, through their son Capt. Matthew Estes<sup>2</sup>, who was born in Dover, England, May 28, 1645, and died in Dover, N. H., July 9, 1723. He was a master mariner, and a devoted member of the Friends Church. He married Philadelphia (Jenkins) Hayes of Kittery, Me., June 14, 1676; and died at Lynn Dec. 25, 1721. Their son John Estes<sup>3</sup>, born July 14, 1684, married Hannah Bassett of Lynn Feb. 15, 1705-6; and died at Lynn Sept. 29, 1723. Their son William Estes<sup>4</sup>, born Aug. 23, 1718; was a hatter in Lynn; married Ruth Graves Jan. 1, 1745; and died April 6, 1781. Their son William Estes<sup>5</sup>, born Jan. 29, 1768, married, secondly, Rebecca Chase July 3, 1805; was a cordwainer at Lynn; and died there March 3, 1848. She was a high school with the highest honors, being awarded a gold medal. Upon his marriage he settled in Salem, where, in 1888, he built the house, at 254 Lafayette street, where he afterwards lived.

Lydia E. Pinkham, the mother of Mrs. Gove, was one of those lovable women who are naturally found at the bedside of the sick or in the house of trouble. She had prepared for many years a medicine from various roots and herbs and generally gave it away. The family were well-to-do until the panic of 1873, when Mr. Pinkham lost his property and his courage and health. One of the sons suggested the sale of their mother's medicine, and it was decided to put it on the market. The boys secured work and turned their earnings into the fund to pay for the support of the family and for bottles, printing, advertising, etc. Steeping herbs in the kitchen was begun on a larger scale. They had printed a lot of little pamphlets telling about the good properties of the compound, and the boys distributed them on the workingmen's trains and on the streets. Later, the boys went to Boston, New York and Brooklyn and distributed circulars. They lived in an attic in Brooklyn for a while, cooked their own meals on an oil stove and tramped. Later, R. M. Pulsifer, owner of the Boston Herald, advertised the medicine to the extent of a thousand dollars on credit. Then began a business, which today pays more than a million dollars a year for advertising. On the death of her brother, Charles H. Pinkham, Nov. 10, 1900, Mrs. Gove became the only surviving child of Mrs. Pinkham, and since then to the date of his death, April 14, 1920, Mr. Gove was the president and general manager of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn.

He was alderman of Salem, 1894-1896, and chairman of the Quaker, but left the Society and became a Swedenborgian. They were the parents of Lydia Estes<sup>8</sup>, born in Lynn Feb. 9, 1819, a very successful school teacher before her marriage and a woman of the noblest qualities. She was a spiritualist. She married Isaac Pinkham, as his second wife, Sept. 8, 1843; and died May 17, 1883.

Isaac Pinkham was descended from Richard Pinkham<sup>1</sup> of Dover, N. H., who was living there in 1640, through his son John Pinkham<sup>2</sup>, who succeeded his father on the old Pinkham homestead in 1671. He married Rose Otis, who was taken to Canada in captivity by the Indians, and ransomed. Their son James Pinkham<sup>3</sup>, born in 1687, resided on Dover Neck, and married Elizabeth Smith in 1712. He died about 1760; and she died in 17—. Their son Daniel Pinkham<sup>4</sup>, born in 17—, married Patience Ham in 1780, at Madbury, N. H.; and lived at Portsmouth, N. H. Their son Daniel Pinkham<sup>5</sup> lived in Portsmouth; married Abigail Hawkes of Saugus, Mass., Dec. 13, 1813; and about 1829 removed thereto. He died in 1841; and she died May 10, 1851. They were the parents of Isaac Pinkham<sup>6</sup>, born in Portsmouth Dec. 25, 1815; married Lydia Estes; and lived in Lynn, where he was a real estate dealer. He died at the house of his son-in-law, William H. Gove, in Salem, Feb. 22, 1889.

MRS. AROLINE CHASE GOVE

Board of Aldermen and Board of Health, 1895 and 1896. He was member of the Massachusetts house of representatives in 1903 and 1904, serving on the Committee on the Judiciary. In 1910 and 1911, he was a member of the Executive Council of Massachusetts, chosen to advise the Governor. He was a member of the Republican city committee of Salem for many years, being respectively its secretary and chairman. In 1908, he was an alternate delegate from his Congressional district to the Republican National Convention. For many years, he was a justice of the peace and a notary public. He was an advocate of "proportional representation," and devised a method of elections called the "Gove system of Proportional Representation." He was an Odd Fellow, belonging both to Lodge and Encampment. As a Freemason, he belonged to all the Masonic bodies, except that of the Thirty-third degree; and was president of the Salem Masonic Building Association, which erected the Masonic Temple in Salem. He was a member of the Salem and Colonial Clubs of Salem and the Tedesco Club of Swampscott, Mass.

He was a birthright member of the Society of Friends, and was never disowned, and always adhered to the essential principles of the Society. The meeting to which he belonged, of the so-called Wilburite branch of the Society, was discontinued long ago; and soon after his marriage he joined the Independent Congregational Church in Barton Square (Unitarian), Salem. He was active in bringing about the union of that and the East Church (Unitarian), in Salem, under the name of the Second Church, of which organization he was president until his death. He was also a life member of the American Unitarian Association.

He traveled considerably with his wife and family, visiting Europe several times; and in 1914, after a cruise to the North Cape, found himself in Buda-Pesth, the capital of Hungary, when the Great War broke out; and reached London the night Great Britain entered the war. He has also visited Nova Scotia, Canada, California and the Pacific Coast, Bermuda, Nassau, Panama, Jamaica and Cuba.

He compiled and arranged this book on the Gove family, beginning with the notes and records collected and transferred to him by Ira Gove (No. 533), and enriching and enlarging these by extensive researches of his own.

The health of Mr. Gove began to decline early in 1918, and in the latter part of the year he entered the Salem Hospital for treatment. He remained at the hospital through the winter, and appeared to be much better. Late in the autumn, he accompanied his family to Miami, Fla.; and as warm weather came on, he grew weaker. The return journey was made, but he reached home only to pass away about three hours later, April 14, 1920. Under Masonic auspices, his funeral was held in the Second Church, the services being impressive and the house filled. The mass of beautiful flowers evidenced the affection and esteem in which he was held. His final resting place is in a large mausoleum which Mrs. Gove has built upon the ancestral farm in Seabrook.

CAPT. ARTHUR EVERETT GOVE<sup>9</sup>, born at North Pownal, Vt., April 23, 1855. When nineteen, he started from Mystic Bridge, Conn., on the George Moon, a vessel built in that town. He did not want to go to school, but did greatly desire a sailor's life; so his father told him if Captain Brand would take him, he could go, thinking that a single trip would wean him from his pet desire. The ship sailed out of New York, bound for San Francisco, and she was not returned there. He stayed on her five years, until the captain gave up the command. He was never put before the mast, but was given pleasant duties as an assistant to the captain. He has sailed many yachts, among them George Gould's and E. C. Benedict's, and, for a Mr. McCochran of New York, took the Alvina across and all through the ancient Grecian Archipelago. This was a wonderful cruise. Then the owner sold the boat and Captain Gove took it to Duluth, Minn., to her new owners. He was also master of the Alexander, a government collier, located in the Philippines four years. He is now with the Standard Oil Company, and took over to China the new boat they built at Quincy, Mass., last year. CHARLES EDWARD GOVE<sup>9</sup>, born at Norwalk, Ohio, Nov. 22, 1856. He was an insurance agent for awhile, and then taught school until his health became so poor that he had to resume his insurance business. He was superintendent of schools at Waterville, Maumee and Vermillion, Ohio. In politics, he was a Republican; and he was highly respected as a Christian teacher, citizen and friend.

Mr. Gove married Elizabeth, daughter of Lewis and Cornelia (Gunn) Gibson of Norwalk June 12, 1883. She was born there June 30, 1864. Both herself and husband were members of the Presbyterian Church. July 4, 1905, his horse, which he was driving, became frightened and tipped over the buggy in which he was riding. His ankle was broken. After that, he was never well. Sept. 8, 1909, while repairing the roof over the kitchen, at his father's house, he fell and broke his back. He was an intense sufferer and was never able to be removed to his house. At his father's house he had every care that loving hands and hearts could give. He was very patient and glad to go to his rest. He died Oct. 10th following the accident. In the spring of 1918, his widow returned to Norwalk to care for her father, whose mind had begun to fail. It was known that he carried large sums of money. Sept. 11, 1918, was a stormy day, and the night was dark and wild. A stranger went to the house and asked that he be allowed to stay over night. Mrs. Gove telephoned to a neighbor to see if the neighbor could take him as she was cleaning house. A little later she called the neighbor again and said that the man insisted upon staying and she would keep him. The next day no one was seen about the place, and at night the neighbors investigated. It was discovered that Mrs. Gove and Mr. Gibson had been brutally murdered. She was preparing breakfast when she met her fate. The stranger was captured a week later, convicted on circumstantial evidence and a partial confession and is now serving a life sentence in Columbus, Ohio.

2692

CAPT. CHARLES EDWARD GOVE<sup>9</sup>, born in Lynn, Mass., July 23, 1839. He attended the Mt. Vernon Street school, under Master King and later the new school on Smith and School streets. When he was thirteen, the family removed from Newhall street, where he was born, to Nahant, where his father and the latter's six sons engaged in the fishing industry. In later years, he engaged in the retail fish business at Nahant, and only occasionally made a fishing trip. He was of a picturesque type, with brown hair, blue eyes and of light complexion. He was in height, as he was wont to say, "six feet and half an inch," and weighed one hundred and seventy. He was very fond of children, and well-known for his integrity and cheerful disposition. He was constable of Nahant for a number of years and chief engineer of the fire department. He was captain of the Massachusetts Humane Society's Life Boat crew at Nahant; and in isolated instances saved many persons from drowning.

Captain Gove married, first, Elvira Elizabeth Powers, daughter of Charles and Adeline (Strong) Whitney and widow of Rufus H. Angier of Charlestown, Mass., Feb. 7, 1862. She was born at Dublin, N. H., Nov. 26, 1833; and married Mr. Angier Dec. 4, 1853, at Charlestown, where he died Jan. 22, 1854, having been married seven weeks. She died at Nahant, of Bright's disease, April 15, 1901. Mr. Gove married, second, Emma Frances, daughter of Alvin and Caroline (Geyer) Whitney, cousin of his first wife, Nov. 27, 1902 at Cambridge, Mass. She was born about 1850. He died at his home on Ocean street, after an illness of two weeks, Jan. 26, 1920, aged eighty. She survives him.

Children, born at Nahant:

- 3476—I. CHARLES EDWIN<sup>10</sup>, born June 2, 1863. See family numbered "3476."
- 3477—II. ELLEN ADELINE<sup>10</sup>, born Oct. 26, 1865; married Woodbury Grant, son of Charles Adams and Eunice Brown (Pennell) Britt of Harpswell, Me.. Aug. 29, 1888, at Lynn. He was born in Harpswell March 24, 1861. Being offered a position with the Mariposa Commercial Mining Company of Mt. Bullion, Cal., in October, 1899, Mr. Britt went thither, and, in December, his wife with their three young children, joined him, after a five days trip, at Merced, Cal. They drove fifty miles over the hilly country to Mt. Bullion, fording Bear creek, then a roaring torrent, as the rainy season had begun. Finding no house to move into, they boarded with a German family, who employed a Chinaman cook, remaining there three months, and then secured a house. It was in a mining camp. Large prairie schooners, hauled by twelve or sixteen horses or mules were the only conveyance of merchandise. The driver rode on one of the animals next to the vehicle, and used one rein. Mr. Britt did the carpentry work at this gold mine and for the miners. All days were alike, and the settlement consisted of three houses, one or two shacks and a general store. Mrs. Britt started a Sunday school in the old schoolhouse, which was well attended and the means of getting a minister from Mariposa to preach twice a month. Mr. Britt was appointed on the school committee, and was the means of securing a new school building. A hotel and many houses were built later. They remained there three years and a half and then removed to Berkeley, Cal. They lived there three and a half years, when, April 18, 1906, the awful earthquake awakened Mrs. Britt and the children, Mr. Britt being away in the mountains at work. They quickly dressed and went out of doors. The house had moved an inch on the underpinning, the chimney fell off, dishes were broken and walls cracked, as by an axe. They built a fireplace in the yard from the bricks that fell from the chimney, and by putting a sheet of zinc over it, the family cooking, ironing, etc., by its aid, were done for a week or more. There were forty-eight small shocks that day and every time they felt one they ran out of doors. The town was under martial law, and refugees poured in on all trains. Across the Bay were seen the terrible fires burning night and day for weeks in San Francisco. Unnerved by this experience they stored their household goods and went to a camp at a place called Barrett's with Mr. Britt, who was then superintendent of bridges on the Yosemite Valley Railroad. Many years before this had been a flourishing town, but then only underpinnings and some fruit trees and large oleander trees in full bloom marked the site. Their tent was pitched under a large fig tree. As the construction work progressed they pulled up stakes and moved on to the next camp. This practice was continued until autumn, when they rented a house at Bagby on the Merced river. They remained at that place until the next June (1907) when, for the sake of the education of the children, they returned to their old home in Lynn, where he is a carpenter and contractor. They reside at 77 Dearborn avenue, West Lynn. Children: 1. Carrie Edna<sup>11</sup>, born July 4, 1891, in Lynn; married Fred Harrison Silver of Salem, Mass., Aug. 22, 1916; and resides in West Lynn. His education was limited, only attending school about four months yearly until he was eighteen, when he subsequently spent a year and a half at the Pennsylvania State Normal School. In the spring of 1888, he went West to grow up with the country, and in the unsettled portion of Northwestern Nebraska found employment with the Crete Nurseries Company on a tree planting outfit, planting trees on government tree claims. He thus earned enough money to file a claim to some government land. At first he took a preemption and a tree claim, each containing one hundred and sixty acres, in Deuel County, built a sod house, broke up fifteen acres on his preemption claim, lived on it six months, proved up and sold it for two hundred dollars. Then he took up a homestead claim of one hundred and sixty acres, built a sod house on it, improved the land and worked at anything he could get to do. He married in the spring of 1892, and after ranching in Western Nebraska for twelve years he sold his land and moved to a farm he bought, in 1900, two miles east of Cheney.
